WE NOMINATE

Hubert Newcombe Alyea, a brilliant chemist and, most important of all, a master teacher in a turbulent era when those being taught often seem to feel that the traditional values of "vivid" and "exciting" lack relevance when not applied to the pressing social issues of the moment. This past week in Boston, Mass., the 67-year old Alyea was singled out for an award given annually on a nation-wide basis for "outstanding teaching of chemistry." The $1,000 Norris Award was the sixth such major distinction Alyea has earned from such widely separated groups as teachers of science, pioneers in adult education and congeries of professional chemists and chemical engineers.

Known in educational and scientific circles around the world for his unusual demonstrations in the classroom, and currently concerned with his "Armchair Laboratory," which gives the feel of chemistry to large classes of students by enabling them to do experiments at their desks, Alyea has lectured wherever chemistry is taught. For instance, it is conservatively estimated that he has given one of his demonstration lectures, "Atomic Energy: Weapon for Peace," taring the development of the atomic bomb and atomic reactors, nearly 3,000 times before audiences totalling some 2,000,000 persons in over 50 countries.

Alyea, a Princetonian since he entered Princeton with the Class of 1925 and in his 40th year as a member of the University's Department of Chemistry, has invariably combined "outside activities" with a heavy teaching schedule and research interests in chemical kinetics, chair reactions and the mechanism of inhibition. A check-list of his honors range from the N. J. Science Teachers Award in 1953 to the Honor Scroll Award of the N. J. Chapter of the American Institute of Chemists for "outstanding service to chemistry as a profession, for improving the public image of science to the layman and for stimulating a host of fine students to enter careers in chemistry."

After he received his Princeton undergraduate degree, Alyea completed a year at the Nobel Institute, Stockholm, Sweden, and returned here to earn his doctorate in 1928. His pre-faculty years were spent as a Rockefeller Foundation Fellow studying the chemical effects of radium at the University of Minnesota and gas-explosion kinetics at the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute, Berlin. His advancement to the rank of full professor in 1951 were preceded by World War II service with the Office of Scientific Research and Development in Washington and the Pacific Ocean Areas and a series of assignments in Mexico.

Alyea, a former chairman of the Division of Chemical Education of the American Chemical Society and World War II Educational Supervisor of courses in chemistry given in New Jersey industrial centers, is a regular contributor to a variety of technical and scientific journals and is also the author of five volumes on chemistry and the teaching of chemistry. A native of Clifton, N. J., whose quiet residential streets include Alyea Terrace, named in honor of his family, Alyea enjoys recalling that as a Princeton undergraduate he played the cello in the Princeton Triangle Club Orchestra and actually took as many courses in English as he did in Chemistry.

For bringing to his superlative teaching "The Spirit of Research;" for developing instructional techniques as applicable to physics, biochemistry, general science and other subjects as they are to chemistry; for meriting the accolades which have been bestowed upon him by his fellow scientists and grateful students; he is TOWN TOPICS's nominee as

"PRINCETON EDUCATIONAL PARK:" If John Witherspoon School became The Middle School for Princeton, it could join with a renovated high school in an "educational park." Walnut Lane between Guyot Avenue and Houghton Road would be closed. Both schools could use Witherspoon's "learning center" at the high school, and a new special facilities building (dark square on sketch) thereby effecting some economies. Students, faculty and curriculum at high school and middle school, could mix in a way that isn't possible now. The proposal comes from the Citizens' Long-Range Planning Committee, whose members comment that the value of the change "from an educational and recreational perspective appears to outweigh possible inconveniences to some motorists."

Long-Range School Report Hits Overcrowding

Planning for its public schools, both long and short range, will occupy the Princeton community during the next months. The interim report of the Citizens' Advisory Committee for Long-Range Planning for Princeton's schools was released this week and will be in every Princeton mailbox by the end of November.

"This is not a report of recommendations," Chairman William K. Selden told a Tuesday press conference. "It is a reference report for community discussion."

Meetings will be held around town so that everybody can talk about the report and feed suggestions to the Committee. Detailed plans for these meetings have not yet been made.

"We want as widespread and as community wide a discussion as possible," said board member William Marvel, who holds the Long Range portfolio.

Late next spring, the Citizens' Committee will issue a final report, and that one will contain recommendations. Highlights of this interim document:

• Overcrowding at Princeton High must somehow be relieved immediately

For Your Information . . .

The Citizens' Advisory Committee for Long-Range Planning for Princeton's Regional Schools made its interim report public this week. TOWN TOPICS has devoted the first four pages of this issue to a summary of its findings and recommendations, and their implications for the Princeton community. All of the writing was done by staff member Katherine H. Bernal.

• The Committee takes no stand on building a new high school vs. renovating the old, but presents the cases for both.

• A renovated high school could be part of an "Educational Park" on both sides of Walnut Lane, with Walnut converted to fields.

• School population is declining and will continue to do so.

• A "plurality" of courses and educational styles meaning that tradition and innovation can live side by side is essential for a community as diverse as Princeton.

• A New Office of Program Planning to strengthen management and organization is needed.

"Slum Conditions." "The high school exists under slum conditions and the despair of the slum is in the air here," one teacher said bluntly to the Committee. And a Committee member, passing through the PHS halls at the end of a class period said it was like rush hour in the subway, only all day long.

That notorious and feid catacomb, the girls' locker area, left the Committee speechless: "It must truly be experienced to be believed," the report says.

Some hygiene classes now are held for 30 students in a 20-foot square room with one sink. "Teachers and students grate on one another's nerves," the report continues. And the report makes a tightly organized structured curriculum essential if chaos is to be avoided.

Current overcrowding is at almost entirely caused by those maligned innocents, the students from the sending districts, who can't very well help being the cause of chaos.

If these 428 students were not at PHS this year, the 1,600 enrollment would be only 1,222—a scant 32 over planned capacity.

Wintrop Pike, board member, reminded the press conference that New Jersey's evaluating team said PHS was only half for 900 pupils.

The Alternatives. Double sessions, independent study, operation on a 12-month schedule, summer sessions or removal of the ninth grade to another location would be better than the present situation, the report declares, warning that the need for major renovation or a new school will continue, even after West Windsor and Plainsboro cross Route One.

W-84 Windsor Plainsboro hopes to phase its students out. Even if their new high school opens in September, 1972, the last "sendings" will graduate from Princeton High in June, 1975.

Musical Chairs. The Committee suggests Princeton give "careful scrutiny" to a plan that eases short-term over crowding and has some "attractive permanent features."

Under this proposal, John Witherspoon would be converted into a modified Middle School for the next three or four years, absorbing not only Grades 7-8 but part of Grade 9.

The Citizens' Advisory Committee was named by the school board and knighted with its charge in January of this year. Principally it was to consider the problem of Princeton High School, but always, education came before buildings. William Selden was appointed chairman. Committee members are Mrs. Sherman Bates, Frederick M. Bohan, David Brodsky, Allden Dunham (chairman, curriculum and instruction subcommittee), Mrs. Patricia Duryee, Mrs. Robert M. Hendry, Mrs. P. Porce Hunter, Mrs. C. Harry Kahn (chairman of facilities), Mrs. Gordon H. Mack, Samuel E. Noy, Albert H. Pines (chairman of finance), John Sapoch, Dr. Benjamin S. Verman and William R. White.

Mrs. Hendry withdrew because of family illness and has not been replaced.

Can a Creative Tension Solve School Problems?

"Plurality" is a key word in the new interim report of the Long Range Planning Committee for Princeton's schools.

Princeton is diverse, with many different kinds of people and styles of living, the report says frequently. The educational program here must strike a balance between, or perhaps even reconcile, many of the more divergent viewpoints present in our community.

If people hold "informed and patient" discussions, they report, it emphasizes what the report calls the "creative side" of all the tension that exists today in Princeton over the public schools.

And such discussion "would also diminish the dangers of polarization, which lurk at the edges of our present discontents."

So, the report is about education as well as rush hour PHS hallways.

Incidentally, education is what the students at the press conference were asking about. Besides the professional media, the two PHS student newspapers were invited to the conference: the new underground paper "The Dungeon" and the regular paper, "The Tower." Three students from "The Dungeon" came took notes and asked questions. No one came from "The Tower."

Some "fresh approaches":

- Princeton should consider a "free school" within the high school, with students, parents and teachers shaping the particular free-school experience they want. The two differing educational philosophies — traditional and free-school — would compete "in the market place" for the allegiance of students, teachers, parents.

Students, of course, would be told they assume some risk when it comes to getting into college.

- Children could start school at the age of three or four, and the traditional 12-year span could be shortened by a full year.

"Students are bored in the last two years of high school. They seem to have matured more rapidly than their predecessors . . . In terms of worldly sophistication, the current crop of high school students is far ahead of previous generations. They are anxious to get into the real world, to do something."

- For students who wanted a longer time in school, the high school might cooperate with Mercer County Community College for courses.

- Day-care for infants and toddlers of working mothers could be provided through the PHS Home Economics curriculum.
- High School students could be apprentice teachers and teacher aides, perhaps with a graduation requirement that each student spend time instructing a fellow student.
- After the sending districts go, only 130 PHS students will want vocational education. Maybe Princeton should stop trying to offer vocational courses and put its energies toward creating an outstanding Mercer County vocational school.

There's no real reason for all classes to meet five days a week all year; in fact, "we doubt that a vital education in the future will, or should, occur within the walls of the school."

NOTICE

Because of the Thanksgiving holiday, TOPICS will be printed on Tuesday next week and distributed on Wednesday. Accordingly, the display advertising deadline will be Saturday noon, and Monday morning for news stories. Classified advertising will be accepted until 5 p.m. Monday.

The Committee believes staunchly that the learner is the one who's important, but we also believe all learning is learning something.

"We have a very conventional, perhaps old fashioned view that English and math should be items of the first priority."

"We share the concern of parents and employers who find too many high school graduates unable to spell or communicate coherently . . . the skills of the 3 Rs are fundamental."

Time is Vital. Students, however, should be reached where they are NOW, and drawn in to learning through what they care about.

The Committee was impressed with a PHS course that examines radicalism in American history, starting with the Declaration of Independence and continuing through the New Left . . . with a one-semester English course, "Black Voices," . . . with a course called "English for the Working World."

The risk of controversy? "The community must accept that risk."

Teachers, like townspeople, are divided. Some believe strongly in traditional ways, structured curriculum and lots of homework. Others prefer little or no classroom formality and very little homework.

The Committee was startled in a relatively traditional school system, to find hardly any coordination of academic programs from grade to grade, or school to school.

Tradition vs. Innovation. Traditionalists teachers want grades related to each other, like rungs on a ladder. The new wave of innovative, or activist teachers, insist that . . . formal arrangements linking one grade to the next, hinder the growth and development of individual children.

Activist teachers — and they are mostly the youngest ones — also see learning as "a process of thinking," and not to much the acquisition of knowledge.

The Committee also learned that there are teachers, but no teachers and the learning specialists of the Special Services Unit, the people who teach the handicapped, the guidance counselors, social workers and remedial specialists of an unimpaired variety.

Some specialists feel that regular instruction fails to cope with the complex human and learning problems the specialists deal with.

Learners. And what about the students, the "learners" who are the focus of the Committee's report?

At PHS, there are "Hippies" (two kinds: affluent niddle class activists and those who "live it out"), "grogners" who tune up engines and race far isotopedittie the race cars; "jocks" athletes; "farmers" from the sending districts.

Time and again, the Citizens Advisory group ran up against the fact that the facts weren't there.

Basic planning and managerial information just wasn't available, the Committee found, and a senior school official would have to interrupt other pressing work to look the facts up.

This is "an institutional deficiency, not a personal weakness, and is certainly not unique to Princeton."

To correct it, the Committee suggests that a new Office of Program Planning be formed under the associate superintendent, working with the assistant business manager and two or three additionally trained assistants.

"Better information could illuminate some of our problems . . . The Committee also thinks the school board is 'grossly overextended' and overworked."

From administrative detail, and concentrate on fundamental issues of educational planning, policy and budget.

"The quality of the board is bound to deteriorate if the present intensity of board engagement is sustained."

One policy matter the board should consider, for example, is tenure State law does bind in this matter, but local boards can change their tenure-granting policies. Outside evaluators might be brought in. And if teachers who pass rigid scrutiny and go on to tenure, might get significant increases in salary and responsibility.

Teachers might, in fact, be paid differently for performing different functions, a way around the touchy question of merit pay.

Addition & Subtraction in School Statistics

Dollar figures and population figures both figure in the Long-Range report, and two comments stand out sharply:

• There is an unmistakable downward trend in Princeton's school population: the number of students in elementary grades has been steadily declining for five years and will continue to fall: there are 275 fewer K-3 students now than there were in 1963-64. By 1977-78, there will be 538 fewer children in the entire district than now.

• On the fiscal side, "to put it sharply, (the committee has) grave doubt that the average expenditure advances of recent years can be sustained during the years immediately ahead."

Again Princeton is reminded that $538,100 in tuition will vanish when West Windsor-Flamersboro pulls out $160 more in taxes on a $300,000 house. "This issue will certainly have to be dealt with in the February 1972 budget."

Committee members suggest holding Current Expenses to the increase that comes in from new rateables — mostly in the Township, of course. This is an estimated $120,000 a year, in additional revenue. Then only Capital Outlay would make taxes rise.

"To shift down from an average annual increase of $500,000 in Current Expenses — the pattern of the past four years — to a $120,000 increase is no mean trick!"

Princeton's 1970-71 per-pupil cost of $1,513 is at the top of comparable districts in the state. Over $67,000 in equalized value is behind each pupil (state average: $55,000). This means Princeton's average school tax rate is $1 less than the Mercer County average and only 75c more than the state average.

Population figures were a surprise: they conflict with the classic picture of a "growing Princeton" (and indeed with ten professional surveys made in 1957 and 1964). But they jibe with the Township's 1964 Long-Range School Report projections and with preliminary 1970 census reports showing a 1960-70 school population growth of only 14%, compared to a 26 1/2% growth in the '60s.

Housing development has slowed "dramatically in recent years, and the Committee thinks this modest pace will continue unless there are major changes in land use policy in the Township."

Projected middle income, low-income housing will probably not require additional public school facilities, the Committee believes.

Word of Warning

The snow-tire waits
Upon the rack
To welcome all that White stuff back.

The only white stuff so far has been frost, but the weather forecasters have restored the words "snow flurries" to their predictions, and sooner or later Skies will be cloudy Thursday the Man reports, but the showers expected along the eastern seaboard will in all probability remain to the north of us. Clearing thereafter, but the thermometer is not likely to rise above the 50s again for some months to come.

This Is Princeton

outfitters, jocks or greasers, and they're known more by their category than their skin color.

The Committee comes down hard on parents who push for college admission: "we heard tales of misguided parental pressure . . . in connection with the college entrance rat race. In a district where 46% of all high school students score in the top 15% of national tests, parents start applying pressure on a child to 'produce' in the first years of elementary school."

Teachers say "excessive anxiety and tension" come from this. Some say emphasis on grades and College Boards is "counterproductive to the development of a free, open, inquiring mind."

Ask Me! Students, faculty and administration make a series of pungent comments on life in that learners' world:

"Maybe you Hippie guys learned a lot about life at IDA, but I learned all that stuff on the streets, when I was about seven . . ." A PHS student.

"A lot of people think we have race problems in the school. We don't. Just ordinary fights that happen when different cats start messing around." PHS student.

"Students should leave our schools with a sense of self worth. They should feel they can 'conquer the world.'" Dr. McPherson.

"We can, and must provide students some of the understandings of self and society that they will need." Black teachers, PHS.

"Our objectives are involvement of the child in the kind of activities he will be involved in as a life, so he will become a meaningful member of society." The Wednesday Council.

"Children are immensely stimulated by the free atmosphere, the opportunity to make their own decisions and the opportunity to learn from each other and from observing adults." Elementary teachers.

"It was the kids' night, all the way . . . a fascinating demonstration of responsible public participation in changing the system WITHIN the system." Parent, referring to School Board meeting of May 26, 1970.

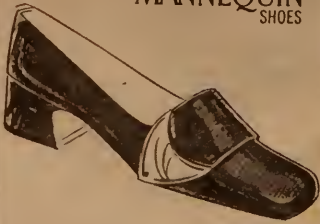

"I never thought about leadership before: I was devil may care. Now before I open my mouth I think of how other students feel about it." PHS student leader.

WOMEN AND EMPLOYMENT. Dr. Jennifer S. MacLennan is this Thursday's lecturer in the Adult School series, "Exploring the New Feminism," scheduled for 9 p.m. in the high school auditorium. She is the chief Psychologist of Opticon Research Corporation, and her area of concern is the feminist movement in employment opportunity.

McCarteer to Suspend Repertory for 1971-72

PRIVATE PARTY?

The Proprietor wishes to announce the availability of its unique Whig Room for Private Banquets, Parties, Teas, Luncheons, Dinners & Business Meetings. Catered in the Tradition of Colonial Princeton. Superb food, Extraordinary Service, Authentic Atmosphere. Call Mr. Ross for information at Walnut 4-5555.

In The Court at Number 28-30 Witherspoon Street in Princeton, New Jersey. Accommodating 100 Persons in two Dining Rooms, the Whig Room & The Tory Room. Luncheon, Dinner & Cocktails.

McCarteer Theatre will suspend the repertory component of its operation next season (1971-72) for a one-year period, it was announced this week by Executive Director Arthur V. Lithgow and Prof. Daniel Seltzer, Chairman of the University's Faculty Student Committee which determines overall policy for the McCarteer program.

Prof. Seltzer reported that the decision has been made "in order to give the 11-member McCarteer Committee an opportunity to study and re-evaluate the entire McCarteer project after its first 11 years of operation." It will also enable the committee, Prof. Seltzer said, "to fulfill Mr. Lithgow's long standing request for a one-year leave of absence."

"This interim period," Prof. Seltzer went on to say, "will permit us to examine anew such questions as the role of a professional theatre company at McCarteer; the relationship of the McCarteer program to other work in the performing arts at Princeton; aspects of curricular development in the performing arts; problems of scheduling; and possible physical alteration in the stage plant of the theatre itself."

For the 1971-72 season, Mc-

Carteer will maintain an enlarged program of special bookings from all areas of the performing arts. "We hope," Mr. Seltzer continued, "to keep the theatre extremely active with a varied program of events, exploring new presentations that are experimental in nature."

Miss Shannon in Charge. During the interim year, McCarteer will be under the direction of Miss Nancy Shannon as general manager, while William Lockwood, Jr., will serve as program director. Mr. Lockwood is also Director of Programming for New York's Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts.

Mr. Lithgow, Executive Director of McCarteer since 1963, will utilize his year's leave to continue work on a number of projects in the educational and theatrical fields, including collaboration with composer Frank Lewin on a musical drama dealing with historic events in and around Trenton and Princeton in the winter of 1776-1777. (See news of the theatres, page 9.)

Built in 1930 by the Princeton Triangle Club with the aid of funds from the estate of Thomas N. McCarteer '88, McCarteer Theatre was re-christened in 1960 as the University's Center for the Performing Arts. In the past decade, its seasons of resident professional drama have presented more than 100 plays from the classical and contemporary literature.

The current season of resident repertory opened on October 16 with Arthur Miller's "All My Sons." Before its conclusion in late April, McCarteer will offer six additional productions, including the World Premiere of Theodore H. White's first play, "Caesar of the Rubicon," which will open February 12.

ANY HOUSING YET?
Township Ground-Breaking in '71? As everybody who follows Princeton Community Housing must know by now, the Township's middle-income, low-income project will unquestionably get under way before the Borough's does.

In fact, Theodore Vial of PCH told Township Committee Monday night that, with a lot of speed and luck, ground might be broken late in the summer of '71.

Mr. Vial also revealed that PCH may want more land than the acreage it already has in a land-lacked section of the Township heartland off Terhune. "But we don't know whether any is available," he said.

PCH plans to discuss with the Princeton Housing Authority inclusion in the project of Federally financed low income units. They might be scattered on a random basis, throughout the project, Mr. Vial said.

Mayor John D. Wallace asked if Committee or the Regional Planning Board could do anything to speed things up. Mr. Vial said PCH had to wait until the architects have begun their work "and we have no architect yet."

Mr. Vial said delicately that "New Jersey's position on money for the architects isn't — Continued On Page 13

 An Asset to "The Show-Off"

You always knew, didn't you, that "way back in history there must have been an ancestor of the TV situation comedy." Pay your respects to this ancient at McCarter's repertory presentation of "The Show-Off" — a 46-year-old comedy by George Kelly. My, oh, my! Or even, "Land Sakes!" If homage to antiquarians isn't your thing, go to "The Show-Off" to see himself, Aubrey Piper as played by Tom Brennan, and his exasperated mother-in-law "Mother Fisher" as lived and breathed, every crabbly, crochety bone of her, by Dorothy Chace.

What a pair they are! Miss Chace hasn't played anything for McCarter so far except middle-aged mothers, but her vaporous, pathetic mother in "All My Sons" isn't even related to Mother Fisher — shrill, deft of ear, eye and wit, quarrelsome, bumptious even in grief, jabbing away with ferocious knitting needles as though she could skewer Aubrey and smother him up in a single purred row. A perfectly splendid portrayal.

And Aubrey — Mr. Brennan is a big man, and his Aubrey is a hulk of bombast and hot air, coming on strong with the heaviest line of jokes since Joe Miller's grandfather. He does wear a wig, as Mother Fisher cynically suspects, and if you're going to poke around for symbolism in this crazy play you might as well start with that wig, a false front as phony as Aubrey himself.

In 1924, "The Best." Back in 1924, Hedwig Brown said "The Show-Off" was "the best comedy yet written by an American." Forty-six years later, it seems like the long-est comedy yet written by an American (three full hours, curtain-to-curtain), with endless repetitive dialogue that director Robert Blackburn really could have pruned a way.

News Of The Theatres
in 1924. But a scant decade later, it wasn't so. When you couldn't pay the rent and had to borrow from your brother-in-law, and move in with the wife's folks, and it was Clifford Odets who held the Depression stage.

Today, two generations later, Aubrey is a sad kind of guy. When he brags that he practically runs the Pennsylvania Railroad and we know he's only a $32-a-week clerk we see him as a man whose values have been corrupted by a society that puts too much emphasis on status and money.

A Built-Up Gag. But not goodness sake, don't waste your time going to "The Show Off" if you want to sit around and chew over declining social values. Once you're in the theatre, you might as well make up your mind to laugh or groan over Aubrey's automobile accident with the borrowed car, a cumulative gag that builds and builds like the ancient one about the day the dog died.

And you'll have, as we said before and would say again, if we had enough space, an absolutely wonderful time with Dorothy Chace's performance as Mother Fisher. The others in the cast, by the way, give perfectly sound, professional performances, but how can you compete with a show-off and a mother-in-law?

Bill Milkiewicz has designed a painfully realistic 1920s room and James Edmund Brady has the mid-1920s mid-right down to the cuffs. Somebody even dug up an old Delinator magazine.

When you get to the preposterous ending, which is "I Love Lucy" to the hundredth power, you just know that somewhere the McCarter audience is the Aubrey Fisher who will see "The Show Off" to Madison Avenue — "There's this old play about a wind-bag, see, and it would make a great series. We open with this crazy automobile accident."

For "The Threepenny Opera" Theatre Intime will have a live orchestra and a cast of 31, the largest in the theatre's history under the direction of McCarter Theatre's actor-director Brendan Burke.

The musical was adapted by Brecht from John Gay's 1728 satiric ballad, "The Beggar's Opera." As Mr. Burke points out, Brecht set the opera in London. "But it is clearly the profiteering, swindling, poverty and unemployment of the first German democratic regime in the 1920's that inspired him. We'll's score, a bleak conglomeration of tangos, fox trots, shimmies and the jazz songs of the Berlin cabarets, perfectly complements the setting. It is the world of George Grosz, of "The Blue Angel," a world obsessed by cruelty, depravity, and cruelty. By setting the opera in the period in which it was written, I am hoping to recapture the darker qualities of the hook and music, which constantly protest that the world is mean and man uncouth."

Burke has directed two shows for Summer Intime: "Playboy of the Western World" and "Heartbreak House," directed by McCarter. He also directed the production of "Pygmalion" and "Pleugh and the Stars," and played Jacques in "As You Like It" and as the lead in "Charlie's Aunt" as McCarter.

Reservations may be made by calling 452-8181 weekday afternoons and evenings of performance between 7:30 and 10 p.m.

ISRAELIS TO DANCE
In a Trenton Concert, Israel's Balshuva Dance Company, in the United States for the first time, will perform in the War Memorial auditorium in Trenton on Saturday, December 5, at 8:30 p.m.

The Princeton Ballet Society is sponsoring the appearance and tickets may be reserved by calling the Society at 924-8747 between 2:30 and 5:30 p.m. Princeton residents who attend the dance concert may travel to Trenton in buses which will depart from the Ballet Society studios on Alexander Street.

Balshuva, according to Leo Barnes of New York Times, "is culturally pure American modern-dance company, living and thriving in Tel Aviv. Yet the company has evolved a spirit of its own, a style of dancing, gutsy and involved, that belongs to no one but itself."

The Company was established five years ago by Bethsabée de Rothschild, for whom the group is named.

SONTAG'S FILM BOOKED
For Princeton Premiere, Susan Sontag's film, "Duet for Cannibals," will have its Princeton premiere next Tuesday at 8 p.m. at McCarter. It's one of the New Cinema Series. A combination of Hitchcock and psychological comedy drama, "Duet" has been called "compelling, visually inventive, ultimately sinister — and for those whose stomach is strong, very, very funny."

Sontag, of course, is the critic-novelist-essayist. She made the film in Sweden in 1968, using Lars Ekborn and Adriana Asti as the pair in her "Duet."

Director Burke's "Antigone:"
Learned, Creative, Sensitive

The continuum of complicity does not exist in what should be realized as the theatre of Brendan Burke. In this theatre, there is no room for the typical audience of today which is highly spoiled, egoistical, non emotional, uninformed and well...

It has been the policy of professional theatre to pamper the audience, give them what they want and not be too concerned with, say, the good theatre especially in our times, or "Is this theatre?" What of a concept that an audience never fails the theatre but that the production fails the audience?

Brendan Burke, a masterful director and drama aesthetic visionary for his sense for dramatic intent, artistic timing and performance emotive style, has, it seems, taken to extreme good advantage the creditable disconnection of the Princeton Community Players from a professional theatre of the reputation syndrome. Burke's theatre is, above all its other positive attributes, a re-education in true theatre effected through perfect balance between some desire for a perfect performance and a learned, sensitive curiosity. Creative sensitive curiosity can get one in to serious trouble in today's professional theatre of money making and "long live the audience."

But now that we are with the Princeton Community Players and the theatre is that incredibly intimate and successful use of Unitarian Church theatre from an orchestra pit, why not? Or What if?

Thus the Community Players, under the direction of Mr. Burke, began to put together its current production of Jean Anouilh's "Antigone." It opened last weekend and will play again this Friday and Saturday at 8:30.

Opening night saw a room full of people of mixed expectations and moods. The set is all red blood, a huge Greek mask of Gedeon's face hangs on the stage left wall, a ghastly green spiritual brooding, a distant, dulling drum roll tells of the beginning of the play and Burke's excellent sensitivity allows the drum's roll to go on long enough to make the audience become aware of time, the pace and mood of the play and time to transfer from whence they came to "the logic and theatrical effect" of Anouilh.

Ed Spiegel, as chorus, speaks first to his manner, his voice full of questioning logic, his body full of intent and purpose. He was saying to us, in so many words, "Look, I know this is slow and deliberate and in fact I'm even going to tell you what happens in the play before you actually see it, but it's all necessary, I don't want to violate your wishes but if this play is done any other way than this it will fail."

An audience you must be attentive, you must listen to every word, catch every sign and, through its significance, catch each symbol. All are not without meaning and content. All must be taken seriously before you can decide for yourself what you have just seen.

Not one member of the company is weak or deserves dishonorable mention. They all work together well. Special mention must be made of three actors who in their individual confidence and concentration largely contribute to the success of the production.

Irene Rosenburg reminds one of Elizabeth T. Burton. In her complete and convincing performance she shows talent and capability as an actress of being mind and matter, the finite moment of the infinite, opaque inertness and translucent energetic intelligence. She plays the part of Antigone well.

Likewise Ed Yanowitz, as

Ceron, from his first silent, existentially significant stares and pacing, to his last beautifully timed and well executed snap at playing the part of an individual who must continue to engage himself even after the tragedy; puts on a mask of concentration and he too plays his part well.

Philip Paul is amazingly correct as the First Guard. Out of the purposeful dullness comes purposeful snap and a clip and wit, and English cocky neck hack.

Brendan Burke understands and masterfully plays our present sign and symbol milieu into the context of the play; his skill at visualizing effect, and his skill at directing controls to realize this and Anouilh's desired results make for a production that The Princeton Community Players can be proud of.

"Man is not to be defined as a reasoning animal or as a social one, but as a free being, entirely indeterminate, who must choose his own being when confronted with certain necessities. . . . we wish to put on the stage certain situations which throw light on the main aspects of the conditions of man, and to have the spectators participate in the free choice which man makes in these situations" — Sartre.

"You can help people to be in the position to be free, but you can't be free for them: They must find freedom in their own hearts" — Simone de Beauvoir. — Ted Woods

HERE'S "MAME"

Cast Announced. Last week, Director Milton Lyon of "Mame" announced that Mame herself would be played by Roo Brown in the P. J. & B. production scheduled for four performances at McCarter starting Thursday, December 10.

Just to keep up the suspense, Mr. Lyon held off announcing the rest of the cast until this week. Now we have the complete line-up for the hit musical.

A pair of husband-wife teams will return to P. J. & B. They are Stuart and Petie Duncan and Cobble and Etienne Sturhahn, all four of whom have been on Princeton stages many times before. Stuart Duncan will play a character described only as "Mr. Babcock," while Petie Duncan will be Agnes Gooch, the irrepressible Nanny.

Mr. and Mrs. Sturhahn will portray Uncle Jeff and Mrs. Burnside.

Betty Fussell Returns. Betty Fussell, who hasn't been in a P. J. & B. production since "Finian's Rainbow," will play Sally Calo and Asby Adams, who was Ravenel in "Show Boat" will play Beau, the rich Southerner who gets to sing the title song, "Mame."

Georgine Hall, Freedman, well-known as an actress in both Princeton and New York, will come onto a P. J. & B. stage for the first time, as Vera Charles. That's Mame's best friend, who is the grande dame of the legitimate theatre. Patrick, Mame's nephew, will be played as a boy by Davis Yokana and Greg Pow

The Shakers, Quakers, and Pilgrims are alive and well at Cane Farm

"Less is more," said the 1930 modernists. "Amur," came the centuries-old answer of our earliest settlers. Their search for simplicity and truth gave us some of the finest examples of American design and craftsmanship. You can see and buy museum-quality re-creations of these fine pieces at Cane Farm Furniture.

IT'S NEW To Us

CELEBRATION UNDER WAY

At Welcome Aboard Restaurant with food and drink from the various countries of the world. Welcome Aboard is having a week of "International Days" in its offices at 13 Spring Street. The occasion is the travel agency's 10th anniversary.

The first open house, the Wednesday centered on Greece. Thursday's affair was Italian and the Greek. On Friday it's Spain and Portugal. Monday features Latin American look to them. She accents the earth tones with black or rich, deep blue and a curious set of tiny glazed dots.

There will be no re-creations on hand and information of almost any travel project you can think of. There will be small gifts for open house guests and, for those who book any trip during the week, a $10 gift certificate.

And Welcome Aboard will also hand a drawing for five prizes from Hawaii and a "new" garment bag to take on the plane with you.

Mr. Stein and her husband Irving own Welcome Aboard. She is extremely knowledgeable in the highways of the United States, and has just added to her expertise with trips to Iceland and Puerto Rico. She gets a little excited about Iceland which she visited in May. If you are a nature lover and want to see some marvelous sights, natural geysers, waterfalls and—well, a volcano erupted while I was there and we took a plane over it. Iceland is quite fabulous.

On the staff is Marie Johnson who has just returned from the Orient, a very knowledgeable woman who has been in the travel business since 1957. She has an enthusiasm for Spain and Portugal, possibly because she is of Portuguese descent. She lived in Hawaii for two years, and, to balance things off, is a specialist in Caribbean travel.

From Bells to Bowls

Do you remember the first time you heard the first thing we heard to a lamp that you although last week when we dropped into the Astro Lighting Gallery. It's that kind of a place. Mr. McBride reminded us.

A trio is on U.S. 1 in the new Home Fashion Center. On your right as you drive from Princeton. You'll find there David Lotker who manages the month old store, and Paul McBride, who tells us light arrangement that reflects that he is one of only six people in the East who are qualified to use the title "Professional Designer," a designation recognized by the interior decorating organization A.I.D. and N.S.I.D.

A trio Lighting has such a tremendous number of lamp bases, shades, chandeliers and wall lights that you may turn to Paul McBride with a sense of relief. There are between 400 and 500 hanging fixtures alone. A number of the lamps are transitional pieces that cover several areas of interior design.

The store also supplies customers with a number of services, such as repair of parts and maintenance of a supply of lamp accessories. Astro will turn your "oh-oh-art" in lamps.

And then there's Susan Fein, a displaced San Francisco and Miami, who took six months off from a travel agency several years ago and traveled around the world. She left San Francisco in September and by Christmas had gotten as far as Bombay. She was stopped in Hawaii, Tahiti, New California, Australia, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Thailand and Cambodia and spent a whole month in Japan. If you're daydreaming about the Far East, she would be a helpful person to talk to.

She also took the arduous Penn Overland trip that runs from Sydney to London. "You take your sleeping bag and knife, fork and spoon!" she says. Penn Overland took her by bus through Pakistan, Afghanistan, Iraq, Iran, Jordan, Syria, and Turkey.

Welcome Aboard will talk Christmas gifts with you, if you would like to fill someone's Christmas sock with a gift of a special trip.

THESE MORE TO LAMPS Than You May Think! Would you like some coffee?

refuses to drill crystal into the Astro Lighting Gallery. "That destroys the value."

We noticed standing lamps about bridge table height, with adjustable shafts that let the lamp with an excellent light arrangement that reflects up and around the area as well as below. (About $75.) There's a wide range in size and style and price in standing lamps incorporating small tables. Some are of nicely grained woods, others painted, and still others feature a venetian to marble table surface.

We noticed the Mine-type vases made in Taiwan these days, with pure lined shade above them. There's an Empire look to the small brass lamp with the heavy-weighted base. It's about 18" high including the brass filigree at the top of the black metal shade. The lamp also comes in a soft green or a blue.

$27. We saw equally graceful table lamps for $12.75 and $19.

There are wagon wheel chandeliers. Continued on Page 12

the score and the production

Arthur Lithgow, executive director of McCarter Theatre, will write the script. Those who draw on original sources from the period — songs of colonial times, documents (with actual quotations for dialogue), maps and paintings.
Contemporary entrance techniques, such as visual projections of abstract shapes, scenery and documents, four-channel stereophonic sound and a multi-track sound effects score, will be employed in the production.

According to Mr. Lewin, the Foundation hopes to give 16
performances each summer, after the traditions established by the 37 different historical pageants that are present throughout the United States as tourist attractions each year.
The project will be financed by contributions. Charter membership in the New Jersey Historic Drama Foundation is $10 and checks may be sent to the Foundation at Box 2174,

An outgrowth of the Washington Crossing Association

incorporated as a non profit organization in March of this year.

Mr. Lewin is President of the Foundation. Honorary chairmen are Mrs. Mary G.

PLAYHOUSE AND ERIC
Lovers and Other Strangers
(now playing) is a very funny movie, spiced with outrageous dialogue, situations, characters and bright young talent.

It concerns a young couple who are about to get married after living together for 18 months, and their respective families, zeroing in on various members there, during and immediately after the wedding.

Cy Howard, originator of the
"My Friend Irma" series, proves an imaginative director of comedy. The 13 principles come from all fields of entertainment, most of whom are not especially known to film audiences: Bea Arthur, Bonnie Bedelia, Michael Brandon, Bob Dishy, Clara Leach man and Gig Young are among the names.

PRINCE
Five Easy Pieces (now playing) stars Jack Nicholson, the personable and sensitive actor who stole "Easy Rider" from its two stars with his brilliant playing of the minor role of the alcoholic young lawyer. He sustains his characterization in this film with the same intensity and range.

He's introduced as an oil field worker, apparently adjusted to a life of manual labor, bowling, poker games and a hot romance with a waitress.
It is soon revealed that he is an outsider, a sweetieheart career as a concert pianist.

The core of the film is concerned with his tentative home where his family, all musicians, live on an island off the coast of Washington state. Nicholson's performance is fine.
Equally commendable are Karen Black as the crude and pathetic waitress, sweetieheart
Susan Anspack as the pianist girl friend of Nicholson's brother, Ralph Waldo as the brother, Helene Kallianides the frantic hitch hiker who is fleeting to Alaska to escape polluted air in America; in fact, the entire cast is rich in excellent performances.

"Five Easy Pieces" was the major U.S. entry in the New York Film Festival. It was photographed in color by Laz-lo Kavaas of "Easy Rider" fame. The country western score neatly contrasts with selections from Bach, Mozart and Chopin. Bob Rafelson, author of the original story, directed.

GARDEN
First Love (now playing) concerns a teenage boy's impossible love for a wayward beauty set against the background of Russian aristocracy during the shaky year 1913.
The story is from a Turgenev novel.

The color photography is misty, like a hazy memory.
Dialogues are heard faintly from a distance or behind walls. Dominique Sanda, the object of "First Love" is obliquely observed through slats in a shutter, partially opened doors, or translucent window curtains. Often she is seen from afar, outdoors, walking away. Birds preetually pass overhead, out of reach, against an off-white sky that decimates depth perception.

John Moulder Brown is the 16-year-old who falls in love with the 21-year-old daughter of an impoverished princess.
The brief but telling role of his father is played by Maximilian Schell, who also directed this excellent film. Helplessly enamoured and jealous of the girl, the boy one night arms himself with a knife, prepared to kill any rival. As he lurks outside, the man approaching her house turns out to be his father.

English playwright John Osborne makes a brief and striking appearance as an eccentric poet, spouting verses in open fields among the farmer's pigs. The photography is by Sven Nykvist, whose work is known by Ingmar Bergman fans.

dimers in various sizes for your pioneer American decor. And delicate crystal chandeliers in an equal variety. Some of the hanging lamps featured hammered metal shades, a rather African design. But the most unusual is a hanging drum ($30).

Lamp bases were intensely interesting: cut glass, porcelain, Grecian urns with the light bulb deep inside ($35), even a black Ball with a shade that can be moved up or down. There's also a sculpture piece of chrome rods and Plexiglass tubes, with the Edison type bulbs inside ($31).

Indecentness may trouble you. You may want to take advantage of Astro Lighting Galleries' consulting service. The fee is $25 to have the lighting designed. Mr. M. Brade come in your house and check over your needs. The fee is deductible if you buy your lamp from Astro.

LOOKING FOR FRAMES?

Try Clearcase Studio. Photographer John Apai of Clearcase Studio, 217 Nassau Street, has added a new line of frames for photographs, paintings, graphics or mirrors. You'll find it worth investigating.

Behind the walnut paneling of his reception room are a series of sliding doors, each filled with samples of custom frames—carved, gilded, dark wood—plain or with a color line.

Mr. Apai will also show you the standard frames he has already made up in sizes up to 11 inches by 14. These are various woods, plain or gilded, and a silver look metal that never tarnishes. You'll find oval shapes, included. No glare glass is available.

There is also a considerable choice in frames for miniature or wallet size—photographs for grandmother's dresser or father's desk. These are displayed on a many-shelved carousel near the custom frames. The size is about two and one-half inches up to a but six inches.

Prices of custom framing are from 70 cents to $450 a linear foot; the standard 5 1/2 frames are about $12 to $30, and the miniatures and table size frames go from $5.50 to around $5. Thanksgiving week is cut-off point for ordering custom framing in time for Christmas; the standards are always in stock. Mr. Apai says.

ROSES and RHUBARB

BY DON ALLEN

Spirit of Thanksgiving Past...

It occurred to me the other day that I've been providing a central product for Thanksgiving tables since I was 15. Lovely flowers now — but not always. Before that — Turkeys. As a kid I raised about every kind of small animal — commercially and with profit. Raised them in my backyard and in the center of town. It was World War II and backyard farming and "Victory Gardens" were encouraged. I had a go at rabbits, chickens, guinea pigs and guinea pigs, but most especially I had a lung about turkeys. Turkeys are rather stupid birds and quite unlovable — but I took them to my heart.

Practically every other winged barnyard creature is out there hours after being hatched, scratching around and pecking at food, real or imagined. Not so with turkeys. Turkeys must be taught to eat.

Plan one was to half bury marbles in their mass. While striking for the marbles, the remaining glancing into their food would give them the idea. This did not always work.

Plan two called for alternately dipping their bills into water, then into mash. The mash clogged their bills and they finally understood the relationship. Once they learned to eat, however, they never stopped. They would eat like there was no tomorrow. Maybe they knew something. Anyhow, I began to see myself as one of the great turkey farmers of our time.

In confinement, turkeys develop the unsavory custom of picking out each other's back feathers. This disconcerting habit was thwarted by inserting hog rings into their backs, preventing them from closing completely. About the time their feathers were growing back, the whole enduring flock developed the sniffles.

There was nothing quite so disturbing as watching 125 turkeys all sneezing at one time. They even had the poor manners to sneeze right in your face. Happily, Doc Suits showed me what to do. So profcient did I become in syringing out their stuffy little heads with half water that I began to see myself as one of the great future "vets" of our time.

Everybody in town knew that "little Donny Allen" was growing turkeys. You could hear them gobble in any corner of town and you could hardly conceal their presence, particularly on hot, muggy summer nights. Anyway I never had to advertise my wares. As I think back on it, I did things then that would turn me pale today, like sticking them with production line efficiency, dry picking off their feathers, and then cleaning and dressing them for my customers.

If you were in the turkey game, this was part of it, and nasty business that it was, I just wasted in. To my mind, I was becoming so efficient that I began to wonder how many of the up and coming butchering experts of our time.

Sponsored by our 4-H Club, a buddy and I gave turkey dressing demonstrations all over. We played all the big ones — Hopewell Grammar School, State Teachers College, and finally in competition at a poultrymen's convention in New York City. We won first prize from the A&P Company for a $25.00 War Bond.

We kept a freshly-killed turkey off stage. For opening we'd ceremoniously deliver the bird, then bring on a lighted glow torch and sing off the hairs and pin feathers. We then explained how to make the first incision and proceeded to clean and scrub down the bird before wrapping it in cellophane. All in twenty minutes. We even got a spot on Phil Alampi's early morning radio show.

I remember we'd let the script fall, page by page, to the floor so there would be no rustling of papers on mikes. We were definitely celebrities. There is always someone around to bring you down to earth, however, and after hearing someone say they had never seen a "ham" clean a turkey before I gave up on the idea of becoming one of the great showmen of our time.

Reflecting as I am on "all I gave up" to be come a florist I am sustained by this sobering thought. Even if I can't sustain my mistakes, my product today certainly smells better.

METERS MAY BE SHIFTED Long-term for short-term. Those nice long eight-hour meters in the Borough's center-city parking yards may be moved to outlying streets, replacing short term meters that aren't being used much.

Mayor Robert W. Cawley said this week that the shift might be made early in January. It would require a municipal ordinance.

Short-term meters on streets like Olden Avenue, Park Place and other streets, generally in the eastern section of the Borough, stand idle much of the time according to police and the Borough engineering department.

If these short-term meters were moved into the center-city parking lots, there would be a lot more parking space for Borough shoppers, the mayor pointed out. Employees of the Borough engineering department.

NINE YOUTHS ARRESTED
In Princeton Drug Raid, Two young men and seven juveniles — all but one of the nine students at Princeton High School — were arrested Friday night after their apartment on Witherspoon Street was raided by two squads of Borough police.

Charged with possession of narcotics and narcotic paraphernalia were: Vincent H. Boone, 19, a PHS student, and Tony Anthony Boone, 15, both of 116 Lough Avenue. They were released after posting $500 each to await a court hearing here scheduled for this Wednesday.

The seven juveniles — three of them girls — were released to their parents, pending processing of their charges by Borough juvenile officer, Det. Thomas Procaccia. All were from Princeton, police said, with the exception of one who lives in West Windsor.

Lt. Michael Carnevale said that he believed that the number arrested for drug violations was the largest ever in Princeton involving just students. He added that small amounts of marijuana and heroin were confiscated in the apartment, together with a number of hypodermic needles and syringes.

"Certainly, this indicates to us that this was a 'shooting gallery,'" he said. "It proved that the apartment was a center for narcotic activities in the community."

Lt. Carnevale said that the apartment, located in the rear of the first floor of the building at 148 Witherspoon Street, had been under surveillance for the past five weeks. The police investigation involving how and from whom the apartment was rented is continuing, Lt. Carnevale said.

Taking part in the two-pronged raid, 11:30 p.m. were Sgt. John J. Hellow, Det. Procaccia, P.M. Victor Passanella and P.M. David Lewis comprising one squad, and Detectives Timothy Hunsing and Robert McAvonia and Lt. Carnevale the other. Police were armed with search warrants signed by Judge Theodore T. Tams Jr. and a box of shells were for certain individuals inside, Lt. Carnevale said.

He described the amounts of narcotics uncovered as "not a great deal. It never is in a place like this," he said. "We just hope to eliminate this type of place that often pops up in a community."

SHOTGUN IS STOLEN

From Parked Car. A 12-gauge Browning automatic shotgun was stolen Saturday from a car parked in front of the owner's home, David White, 125 John Street.

Mr. White told police that he had left the gun in its leather case on the front seat of the car and when he returned about 15 minutes later the gun and a box of shells were gone. Total value of both was $212.

Police said that the right front window of Mr. White's car had been broken to unlock the door. The gun was owned by James Glover, 64 Spruce Street.

Two air conditioning units and a cooling coil worth a total of $466 were stolen last week from a Princeton Fuel Oil warehouse at 220 Anderson Street.

The loss was reported by owner Glenn Exhbach. Police said that a glass pane in a small front door inside a large overhead garage door had been broken to gain entry. P. O. londo Carnevale investigated.

Rafaela Carnevale of 208 Ewing Street is probably looking for a way to lock the hood of his car after what happened to him last week.

Saturday he had a new $28.95 battery installed in his car. When he went out to start it the next morning, he couldn't — someone had stolen his battery.

WOMAN IS TICKETED

For Roadside Road Crash. Anna Rial, 40, 222 Rosedale Road, was ticketed for failing to yield the right of way while leaving a private drive Sunday, following an accident on Rosedale Road and the Etl Farm drive.

Rial was treated at Princeton Hospital for a contusion of the nose. A passenger, Hertha Hilscher, 30, of Rosedale Road, suffered a whiplash and face contusions.

The second driver, Michael W. Villano, 21, of Whitehouse Station, told police he kept on Rosedale when the Rabe car came out of the drive and stopped suddenly in his lane.

He couldn't turn right because of a pole or left because of an oncoming car. He said he skidded into Miss Rabe's small foreign car, as a result.

Mrs. Rabe was also charged by P.M. William Pata with no license in possession. The mishap took place at 10:58 p.m. during a light rain.

Early Saturday morning at 3:28, Edward T. Harmon, 48, of Trenton, failed to keep control of his car as he approached the mouth of Stony Brook Bridge on Mercer Road. His car crossed over the double line and struck the opposite wall.

Mr. Harmon refused medical treatment for a laceration of his forehead and a cut inside his mouth. There were no charges by Township P.M. Michael Kopliner.

Druck Trucks Collision. That some drivers will risk a collision rather than strike an animal or a bird was evidenced early Thursday afternoon when Leslie W. Robinson, 23, of Trenton, swerved to avoid a duck in the middle of Cherry Valley Road.

His utility truck struck a car operated by Edward J. Heitman, 30, of Moore-Mill Road, Pennington. Mr. Heitman sustained minor injuries. Both vehicles had to be towed away.

There were no charges by P.M. Olindo Carnevale. The duck, owned by Cary Mohrman of Cherry Valley, was killed.

Another animal may have figured in a single car mishap last week on Valley Road near Jefferson.

Mrs. Rosalie H. Bash, 50, 60 Lafayette Road, told police that she was going about 30 miles an hour when she lost control and struck a tree. The entire front end of her car was totaled. Mrs. Bash dislocated her right shoulder and sustained lacerations to both legs. She was treated at Princeton Hospital.

After the accident, P.M. David Cromwell told a collie pup that was in the car to its home. While driving, he wrote in his report, the pup jumped into the steering wheel. He added that he believed he may have done the same thing to Mrs. Bash. He made no charges.

LEARN TO RIDE

In YMCA Course. Boys and girls, men and women are invited to learn to ride in the next eight-week session of YMCA Horseback Riding Classes, now registering.

Youth classes from complete beginners through jumping are available, meeting after school while adult riders meet on Monday evenings. The program runs from September through May with the second series of lessons beginning Monday, November 30 through Friday, January 29. Classes recess for the Christmas Holiday Week.

David Johnson instructs classes at Hasty Acres on Laurel Road in Kingston and Walter Sundberg coordinates the program for the Y. New registrations will be received through Thanksgiving.

TWO HOMES ENTERED
On Spruce Street. Two homes on Spruce Street were entered Saturday, Borough police report.

The home of James Crawford, 10 Spruce, was entered between 3:20 and 6:30 p.m. through an unlocked window on the northeast side of the house. Taken was $16 in cash and $6 from two savings banks.

Between 5:30 and 8:30, someone opened an unlocked rear door to enter the home of David Libgrov, 45 Spruce. About $100 in cash was taken. The home was not ransacked. "Apparently all he was interested in was money," said Chief Peter J. McCrohan.

Gohene Home Entered. Police also report the home of Princeton University president Robert Gohene, 83 Stockton Street, was entered but apparently nothing was taken.

Police received a call at 11 p.m. Saturday from Jack Miller, a seminary student who stays in an apartment in the rear when the Gohenes are away. There was evidence that desks and bureau drawers had been rifled, but Detective Arthur Gallant, who is continuing the investigation, reported, "As far as we can determine, nothing has been taken."

Sgt. Robert Anderson conducted the initial investigation. A window had been broken out of a french door to gain entry.

$450 Camera Stolen: Dale Dykstra, a Princeton Seminary student, told police last week that a camera valued at $450 had been stolen from his unlocked room in Brown Hall.

Also taken, he said, were a portable TV set, a wristwatch and his tan wallet, which contained no money.

A transistor radio, flashlight and pair of electrical snips were taken from a service truck last week while it was parked in the rear yard of the owner, J.B. Redding & Son, 234 Nassau.

A rear window in the truck had been broken to get inside, police said. The radio was valued at $8.

CHRISTMAS IN VIETNAM: More than 3,500 packages for Christmas delivery to servicemen in Vietnam have been prepared by informal groups, according to Mrs. Lucy Caldwell (above), whose house on College Road serves as the central depot.

"WRAP-INS" HELD For Servicemen's Christmas. People of all ages, from five to 80, have been wrapping Christmas presents since September for servicemen in Vietnam. In other years, the "Christmas in Vietnam" project has been a highly organized affair, but this year it has been pick-up groups of concerned individuals, augmented by contributions from as far away as Statesville, N. C., Pittsburgh, Pa., and Buffalo, N. Y.

"The merchants have been unbelievably generous," Mrs. Caldwell states. "Most of the gifts, which will be flown to Vietnam in about two weeks, will be distributed to service men in remote outposts."

Neighborhood wrap-ins have been held at various places, including the Caldwell house and the Lee Bristol house. Seminary students report twice a week to help. The Ladies Auxiliary of the Hopewell Fire Department and, many times, whole families, have set to work wrapping gifts. Gifts of funds for the project are handled by Trinity Church.

For those wishing to join in, packages will be incorporated in the air shipment until Thanksgiving day, or the following address may be used: USO Freedom Hills, Drawer 2, APO 96317.

RUMMAGE SALE SET To Benefit Multiple Sclerosis. A rummage sale for the benefit of Multiple Sclerosis will be held from 9 to 5 Saturday at Princeton Shopping Center.

On sale will be clothing, games, toys, household items, books, bric a brac, baked goods, and Christmas ornaments. William Cannell of Trenton, assisted by the youth group of Multiple Sclerosis, From 3:30 until closing, bids on the remaining items will be received. Answer Student Vote Letter.

To the Editor of Town Topics: We have suffered through the discussion of student ad ferage (sic) by Mr. Nathan, published Nov. 12. His letter is full of innuendo and misdirection, quite similar to the Agnewian harangue that was omnipresent in the past election.

TOWN TOPICS as well as Mr. Nathan apparently is not aware of the size of the student vote in Princeton District 3, often referred to as the student vote, consists of Magee-Hibben, Butler Tract, Western Way, Southern Way, Hartley Avenue and portions of Broad road, Lake Lane and Alexander Street.

From this list, only Butler Tract houses graduate students; in terms of numbers there are only 150 registered voters in Butler, less than 1% of the total registered in the district. By our mathematics, at least, one cannot possibly characterize a group by 1% of its membership; we hope that this will be the end of the misrepresentation of District 3. In view of this information, it is totally without foundation for Mr. Nathan or any Remondien group to use graduate students as a scapegoat for their recent losses.

Mr. Nathan makes a number of accusations in his letter which are based on complete ignorance of student life and the electoral process. We would like to comment on a number of them.

1. Candidates "encouraging graduate students to vote"; if they are registered voters, as anyone else, should be encouraged to vote.
2. Graduate students "funded often enough through no particular endeavor of their own"; graduate students at Princeton University are funded by the Princeton community teaching duties and research work. Many of them would easily receive five times as much money if they did this same work within a corporation. At the same time, we dare Mr. Nathan to contend, substantiating on a typical graduate student's stipend.

3. Graduate students "possessed of moral certitude and intellectual arrogance"; we suggest that our moral certitude and intellectual arrogance are easily surpassed by Mr. Nathan's; the tone of his letter demonstrates this most clearly.

4. Mr. Nathan infers that the student is not a taxpayer and hence should not be allowed to vote. The graduate student is a renter, and thus pays no property taxes in his rent. Do Mr. Nathan suggest that renters should be excluded from the electoral process? Does he favor a return to the landown or concept of suffrage?

5. Mr. Nathan's further remarks about the "pernicious decisions and actions" of the students are absurd. The employment of subjectivity of the accusation unfortunately precludes any more specific or objective response.
6. Mr. Nathan states that if students are allowed to vote, then transients at local inns should also be allowed to vote. If they satisfy residency requirements and are registered then they should be able to vote. This is the "obvious principle" which eludes Mr. Nathan's mind. Also, graduate students are in residence for four years, which is just one year under the mean residence time for an American family.

7. Mr. Nathan also states (rather illogically) that if students participate in elections, then the Princeton community should have voting powers within the university. This is not reasonable as saying that if labor elects a Democratic majority in Detroit, then each citizen should be given the right to vote. This is the absurdity I would be glad to give Mr. Nathan the equivalent of a student's voice in Princeton University, he would be quite frustrated.

8. Answering Mr. Nathan's ill-founded accusations with factual information, which we have not spoiled his inopportune "garden party" THOMAS and DONNA EDGAR 2108 HATWAY STREET Continued on Next Page much about Repeal, but custom still required a stand by most candidates, as it requires today a stand on Vietnam.

Father's answer that he supported Repeal, was gleefully cheered by the undergraduates, many of whom got up a committee to "help" get him elected. Another committee of undergraduates supported Mr.
Bunn, who was a popular campus figure.

The Seminary, on the other hand was not as liberal in those days in its views on alcohol as it is now. Its response was to encourage the theological students to register and vote against the "Wets." Most of them were old enough to do so. Mr. Bunn won by 76 votes (and he made an excellent Major, as everyone knows).

All this is of interest as an early instance of student involvement in elections. It was also one of the historic incidents in the on-going controversy regarding the morality of registering students to vote in local elections, when their residence in Princeton is to be so brief. The question boiled up then and has done so sev-

WILSON MIGHT HAVE LIVED HERE: During his search for a home when he was first appointed to the Princeton faculty, Prof. and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson considered taking a suite in University Hall, which in the late 19th century stood at the corner of Nassau Street and University Place. See letter to eral times since. But it remains a problem for individual consciences, insoluble by law or community feelings.

ORREN JACK TURNER, JR.
33 Hamilton Avenue

The Wilson Story, Revised.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Your Editor's Note on Woodrow Wilson's houses (TOWN TOPICS, November 5) unfortunately repeats certain inaccurate statements in Lansing Gallins', "Princeton Past and Present", which also misrepresents the authors of "Princeton Architecture." Various documents now printed in
"Wilson: The Man and His Time" set the record straight.

Wilson did not join the faculty here in 1880; throughout that year he was contentedly teaching at Wesleyan, though efforts were being made to obtain for him an appointment to the Princeton faculty. On 13 February 1880, M. Taylor Paine telegraphed Wilson that the trustees had that day elected him Professor of Science and Political Economy.
Wilson began house hunting here in March, and for a while had a discouraging time at one point, Mrs. Wilson suggested that they take a hotel suite in University Hall, the Ruskinian Gothic edifice at the corner of Nassau Street and University Place. By June, however, the real estate firm of Marsh & Wright was able to offer the McGill house, then designated as 18 Steadman Street, for $500 per annum and Wilson signed a lease at once.

This dwelling is one of four Steadman-built houses showing Steadman Street in the Bird's Eye View of Princeton (1874). One of these still remains on its original site, the house used for many years as the manse of the First Presbyterian Church.

About 1880, Prof. William Miller Paxton of the Theological Seminary built a large red brick house at what was later numbered 20 Library Place, and in order to give it an ample site, two of the Steadman houses were moved. One was moved around the corner to 35 Edgemoor Street, and the other, which we may call the McGill Wilson Hunt-Yeastman house, was moved to what is now 72 Library Place. Prof.
Paxton died in 1941, and his house became the residence of Prof. Charles Rosenblyum Erdman.

The McGill house on its new site was occupied by Prof.
Alexander Taggart McGill of the Seminary, who died 13 January 1883. Wilson rented the house from his son, Dr.
John Dale McGill of Jersey City, and moved in about the first of September, 1880. The Wilson's were dissatisfied with the house, it was inadequately heated, the water pipes froze, and Mrs. Wilson complained that it was full of mice.

When they relinquished it to Prof. and Mrs. Theodore Whitefield Hunt in 1886, they felt that the Hunts were getting no bargain. In Volume II of the "Papers of Woodrow Wilson," about to be published, the full story of the planning, financing and construction of the Wilson's dream-house, the Tudor structure at 92 Library Place, is set forth in great detail.

Early in 1885, Mrs. Wilson was circulating a petition among her neighbors for the opening of Steadman Street to the northward. At the time this was carried out the name of Charles Steadman had not attained the fame it has today, and the entire thoroughfare, beginning at Mercer Street, was named Library
Place in January, 1886.

All Children Are Yours

To the Editor of Town Topics:
I would like to take issue with some people answering TOWN TOPICS' Question of the Week (November 12),
"Child-baiting as a means to solve racially imbalanced schools." One person said,
"It's costly and disruptive taking them (children) out of their neighborhood area. All through the years we have never done anything like this."
Children have always gone to school closest to their home."

Perhaps this person never saw or has forgotten the Ed-Morrow TV program of perhaps a dozen years ago documenting small and large black children being bused. I think, 30 miles to school, past many white schools in Louisiana.
There was no cry then of "all Children Are Yours."

NJNPI Growth Endangered, Governor Cahill Is Warned

Growth of the New Jersey Neuropsychiatric Institute at Skillman has been "stagnant" in its tracks by short-sighted economies" on the part of the state, charges a group of physicians, educators and Princeton residents in a letter sent this week to Governor William T. Cahill, his cabinet and members of appropriate committees in the Legislature. Signatories are Dr. Robert Garber, president of the American Psychiatric Association and the medical director of the Carrier Clinic; Dr. Robert E. Bennett, staff psychiatrist at Carver and former medical director at N.J.N.P.I.; Mrs. John O'Hara, widow of the novelist, and past-president of the N.J.N.P.I. Association; three other past-presidents; Dean Ernest Gordon of the Princeton University Chapel; Ricardo Mestres, treasurer and financial vice-president of Princeton University and Douglas O. McClure, headmaster of Princeton Day School.

The Institute did not qualify for approval earlier this year by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals because six categories of "sub-standard patient care" were identified.

"Every one of these objectives could have been reached by July 1 had not the Institute's budget been cut once a gain," the letter charges.

Four of New Jersey's five state-supported mental hospitals are accredited. The Institute — so called because it's the site of research projects in schizophrenia and other mental disorders — is the only one that does not have such accreditation.

It is New Jersey's main drug addiction treatment center; a treatment center for alcoholics, a residence for the care and schooling of emotionally disturbed children.

"How can over crowding be reduced," the letter asks, "while the number of admissions reaches a new high and no additional space is provided? How can adequate medical records be kept by an inadequate clerical force?"

"How can the ratio of staff to patients be at an acceptable level when N.J.N.P.I. cannot afford to fill the positions needed to carry the work load? How can this Institute attract: new doctors, nurses, and attendants when the salaries offered are lower than at other hospitals in the community, and when the long awaited additions to staff housing are still only promises? (N.J.N.P.I. is located near Blairstown on about 1,000 beautiful but remote acres. Repeatedly, fine plans for structural improvement have been drawn up, and then discussed and delayed, while prices continued to rise, and, eventually, nothing was done.)"

"When we ask," the letter continues, "why it takes so long to get the promised money, we are told that the whole health picture in New Jersey needs re-vamping. In the meantime, we urgently request additional medical, nursing and clerical positions at N.J.N.P.I. We urgently request approval of the structural improvement plans. We urgently request replacement of the obsolete wiring in the old cottages."

The Administration, the staff and the volunteers have worked valiantly to keep N.J.N.P.I. a good place for the patients to be. But delays and frustrations break down even the best morale. We ask for quick action to attain accreditation for N.J.N.P.I."

$1 MILLION RECEIVED

By Princeton for Social Science. A $1,000,000 appropriation from The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation of New York City will enable Princeton University to move forward with long-projected plans for a Social Science Center to be located in the Harvey S. Firestone Memorial Library. President Robert P. Goheen announced this week.

The center, which will be known as The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation Center for the Social Sciences "will essentially be a reference library, which is a library, or a laboratory for social scientists, physically and symbolically reflecting the increasing interdependence of the social sciences and at the same time meeting the growing need for more advanced specialization," Dr. Goheen said.

"A substantial part of this splendid grant will be used," Dr. Goheen said, "to establish a Mellon Foundation Social Science Book Fund which in this era of mushrooming costs will help provide a solid base of endowment income to insure the currency and development of our collections in the social sciences."

The Mellon Center will bring together, Dr. Goheen went on to say, the reference collections in the fields of economics, politics, sociology and anthropology and other reference and

ART In Princeton

TOWN TOPICS is pleased to introduce Helen Schwartz as its art critic. Known for her work in both painting and graphics, Mrs. Schwartz is a graduate of the Music and Art High School of New York City and holds a B.A. degree in economics from New York University. She studied art at the New School in New York and now teaches in Princeton; adults in a painting class at the Y.W.C.A. and children in a class in her home. Currently, she has collages and acrylics on view at McCarter Theatre and oils at Stuart Country Day. She will also be represented in the forthcoming Final Push show at John Witherspoon School.

CURRENT EXHIBITS

At the Gallery of Fine Arts, Paintings and drawings by Nelson Shanks will be on view at the Gallery of Fine Arts through November 25. For those who like realism in its most refined forms, this is a show not to be missed.

Mr. Shanks develops the use of light and shadow as an effective device for revealing this subject. Highlights and depths combine in the paintings and drawings alike to reveal his feelings about the human form. This is particularly evident in the most recent paintings which are further enhanced by the artist more vigorous use of his med lum.

Mr. Shanks lives and works in New Hope. He currently is teaching portraiture at the Princeton Art Association.

"MIRRECK," An oil painting by Nelson Shanks on display at The Princeton Gallery of Fine Arts, 9 Spring St.

At Gallery 100, Gallery 100's current collection of craftsmen offer Princeton a chance to see an interesting collection of pottery and hangings. Use Johnson's collection of very formal pieces have a Middle Eastern feeling to them. Terra cotta, black and brown provide a background for precise applied dots of brighter glazes. Mrs. Johnson's large bowls and platters provide a contrast to the smaller pots and containers created by Ron Temple and Jim Makins. Both craftsmen have used very simple and traditional forms as a vehicle for their very beautiful soft glazes in muted colors.

Michael Callaghan's stone ware displays still another dimension of pottery in his baskets, goblets and other pieces using fluid forms decorated in simple flowing glazes. Hangings by Wendy Hutchinson provide an attractive backdrop for Gallery 100's pottery collection. Using both traditional and novel materials for her work, Miss Hutchinson provides us with work that pleases in some instances and surprises in others. Alumininum foil, mirrors, plastics and carpet-like textures are all used together with solid forms which are incorporated into some of the hangings.

"Reflections from a Center Bridge" seems most successfully to combine a two-dimensional composition with three-dimensional materials. The grey and black, richly textured surface contrasts excitingly with occasional reflecting circles which are interestingly spaced pieces of mirror. Mac Rockland's latest show includes acrylic painting as well as intaglio prints. The paintings and graphics combine well to show Mrs. Rockland's view of the human condition. Color is sensitively used to reflect the artist's feeling about her subjects. Particularly somber drunks contrast with bright and vigorous color in this series which manages to please visually while being profound.

At the Eye for Art, The relief prints of Sabra Johnson are on view at the Eye for Art. The prints, in linoleum and wood, used both singly and in combination, are notable for their strong line and contrasts.

Miss Johnson, a New England artist, reflects the charm of a frozen landscape in a small, simple print called "Hillside." There is a series of color prints that make large simple statements in bold colors and skillful use of texture. The artist's skill in calligraphy also is shown in several small prints with simple subjects and lettering used to complete the design.

Princeton Regional Art Show gives Princeton residents a chance to see another dimension of the regional school staff. Paintings, sculpture, weaving and woodworking are all on view at the Community Park School through November 27.

Arthur Steitz, PHS art teacher shows a sensitive painting of a woman as well as an excitingly executed sculpture of plaster and string. A rag, woven of Wonder Bread wrappers by Jeanne Harvey, and an amusing drawing by Gino Circhini are among the more interesting works.

For another view of the regional school administration don't miss Dr. Philip McPherson's vigorous oil painting of "Pittsburgh" and Eugene Bringer's "Head of His Son." The show is open to the public during school hours and on Thursday, November 19, at 6:30 p.m. when an artists reception and folk music concert will be held.

Carrels, Seminar Rooms. In the area of the Mellon Center will be the individually-assigned carrels for undergraduate students, visiting scholars, and faculty members; seminar rooms for the departments and special programs in the social sciences; and the offices of both the professional library specialists and the supporting non-professional staff.

In announcing the Mellon Foundation grant today, President Goheen said: "No more timely — or timeless — contribution could be made to a university than, through the strengthening of the one facility that nourishes and sustains the entire academic community: the university library."

The significance of the Mellon Center, Dr. Goheen said, is accentuated by the "tremendous and continuing growth in teaching and research in the social sciences at Princeton, which shows over the past five years a 43% increase in courses offered in the four basic departments and a 54% increase in total graduate and undergraduate enrollment."

For instance, during the past academic year 76 faculty members, 499 undergraduates and 148 graduate students concurred their endeavors in the social science departments. Nearly 200 senior theses were produced, while over 8,000 individual course elections were made by students in these departments.

"This growth," President Goheen said, "reflects the genuine concern of students with

Hospital Volunteers Can Use Your Help

"I feel that any woman who comes in and gives her time deserves a reward job!" This is Mrs. Robert E. Bonette's point of view as chairman of the Volunteers who man the information desk at Princeton Hospital.

She has 85 Volunteers on the roster, and is looking for more. (People come and go in Princeton, and this faithful Volunteer who fills the 9 to 11:30 a.m. slot every Friday may be living in Ohio by spring.)

"I always seek to make the job interesting," Mrs. Bonette goes on. "The Volunteers have greatly increased their responsibilities over a few years ago and I think the staff is very appreciative of their help."

A volunteer for more than four years, Mrs. Bonette became a chairman about a year and a half ago. Ask her about her hours, and she'll laugh. She gives 12 or more a week in training, supervising or substituting for an absence.

The hospital's information desk is staffed from 9 a.m. until 9:15 p.m., seven days a week, with Mrs. Peter W. Refels taking over Mrs. Bonette's responsibilities at 6:30 p.m. and Mrs. Deborah Livingston, director of the hospital's volunteer program, in charge on Saturdays and Sundays.

Three-hour shifts Each Volunteer is on duty for a bout three hours, one day a week. The desk is the in-coming patient's first contact with the hospital, and it is last when he is discharged.

Mrs. Robert E. Bonette

The work is critical in part, requiring quick thinking, patience and understanding. The desk Volunteers also handle the complicated communication system, that was installed last June.

"There is too much to learn to just walk in and help," Mrs. Bonette adds. "It's a new man — a great, a careful introduction."

"The age of the Volunteer is no longer just to be a person here if she adds. We have a lot of women who fit the hospital into their adult activities. Some volunteer especially for holidays. A great many of us feel that the hospital is an important part of our responsibility to the community. I know I find it very rewarding."

In addition to the information desk, there are other services staffed by the Volunteers: admissions, courier, bookmobile, x-ray, surgical waiting room, laboratory, physical medicine, development office, pharmacy, medical library, community health office, pediatrics, chaplaincy, even the seemingly simple, but no simple, menu service.

Most of the Volunteer corps are women, but since last February a men's unit has developed, distinctive in their blue coats with the emblem. There are also the schoolgirl "Candy Strippers," or Junior Volunteers, who usually appear on weekends.

Inquiries concerning the hospital's Volunteer program are directed to Mrs. Deborah Livingston, the director.

the state of the world, a desire to acquire the understanding of the relationships in our social structure which may enable them to ameliorate the world they will soon inherit.

In emphasizing the importance of The Mellon Foundation Social Science Book Fund, President Goheen noted that "the rapidly increasing cost of books and journals (77% in the past decade as against the 27% increase in general consumer price index) has been compounded by almost a doubling in the same period of the amount of literature published."

$20,000 GRANT AWARDED
To West Windsor Schools
The West Windsor Plainsboro Regional School District has received a National Defense Education Act (NDEA) grant of $20,000.

This grant was based upon a study guide which was developed by a Social Studies Curriculum Committee during this past summer. Dr. Robert H. Tenbrand, Director of Instruction, in working with the curriculum committee, wrote the proposal for the grant.

The study guide emphasizes the teaching and learning of concepts rather than the rote teaching of subject matter. An interdisciplinary approach is used to study the historical, economical, political, sociological, anthropological and geo-

The Rising Generation

A FIERCE HANG-UP OF MINE...

BY ALICE L. MALE

Recently, a mother said to me, "You cannot know where your children are every minute of the day and night these days!"

She is wrong. I have always known, with four who are now 23, 21, 18 and 14, three girls and one boy.

The questions I'd like to answer here are:

1. How can you know? 2. Should you know?

I'll admit it won't be easy and maybe it won't work for some. But as I think over the slogan "We must be doing something right!" I trace it back to knowing what my kids are doing. And helping them do it, if they want me.

A psychologist might say that I have warped my kids' growth. He'd never convince me when I see what they are doing and what their standards are. I do know that a fierce "hang-up" of mine is responsible for what my kids are today.

As a child, I had several near-misses with would-be child molesters. As my daughters became school age, I realized that the memories of those childhood experiences were still so vivid that I could not be content unless I knew where the girls were all the time. As small children, they were not allowed to go beyond the sound of my voice. They thought they had plenty of freedom because my voice carries like a log horn and they could go about anywhere that the neighborhood was developed.

Because I needed to know that they had reached school safely (and the Borough never had hating), we organized car pools or I drove wherever and whenever there were trips to be taken. Today we are told that one thing wrong with our young people is that they never learned to walk. I believe that whatever my children lost in physical exercise, we all more than gained in mutual growth. Yes, they have been as responsible for my growth as I have been for theirs.

I learned to keep my ears open and my mouth shut. Kids are wonderful! They are open. They are joyful. They are concerned. It is amazing what you can learn about friends, school, plans, dreams, when you learn to listen.

A second benefit of my "hang-up" came from the requirement to keep me informed of their whereabouts. If they were not coming home or if plans were changed, I HAD to be called. They knew this. They knew why it was necessary. And, they respected my right to know.

Did this hurt them? I don't think so. It showed them why mothers worry. It showed them how to cope with a mother's eccentricities, and it proved to them that I really did care.

Of course, this means that Mother must be where she can be reached. Some of the stormiest days came when I was out when plans changed, and I had no left word. But I don't feel that I was prevented from doing any of the kinds of community activities that I enjoy.

What did this do to the kids? Because I HAD to know where they were, I felt that I had to give them permission to go wherever I thought it was safe. I drove them when I could or made arrangements for them to go.

Since trips in the car were usually for one child at a time, this gave us a chance to be alone together without interruptions. Our family car was the setting for many a solution to many a problem. Strange? Maybe. Effective? Absolutely!

Where were the kids allowed to go? With proper arrangements for their care, one 15-year-old went to Greece; one 17-year-old who had never wanted to stay away from home for more than overnight went to college in Denver. She liked it so much she stayed the year round. The youngest was off to South America when he was 12 and around the US for ten weeks the next year. So they were not tied to Mother, and they were prepared to be on their own.

What about the second question? Is it a good idea to know where your children are every minute? I think it is. The not-so-obvious reasons are many. Nothing else I know of makes children realize that you really do care about them until you talk together about where they are going or what they will be doing.

They knew I wasn't just being a snop. Their movements were not restricted, and the time for being home was set in accordance with the activity and the place. They had freedom to go, but they had the responsibility to keep me informed. These, I think, are the two limits everybody needs: freedom and responsibility.

How do we teach this? In our case, MY responsibility was to give them freedom to decide where they wanted to go and what they wanted to do. THEIR responsibility was to make wise use of freedom and to keep me informed. As they grew, these freedoms were extended to choices of friends and activities to pursue. But knowing they would have to talk it over gave them the guidelines for the right decisions, or, as one girl said, "Don't you know that you can always blame Mother, because you may want to go home from a party or a place where you're not comfortable?"

It was a real shock and a joy to me to know what a good feeling it gives a child to know that mothers care where they are, who they are with and what the group may be doing.

One note that I would like to add: We had some stormy sessions just as all families do and sometimes talk was impossible. Since I felt so strongly that my children had to know where I stood on some issues even if they chose to decide differently, I wrote them a note and pinned it to the pillow case. That way, they couldn't tune me out and unless they deliberately misinterpreted my thoughts they could see for themselves in a quiet moment how I really felt about something.

Let me conclude by saying that I think today's young people from 14 to 23 are brighter, healthier, more knowledgeable, more concerned than any young people before them. If we seem to have more problems with them, I believe it is because they are more visible, everything they do wrong gets in the paper, most things they do right are not news and there are just more of them around than ever before.

Dr. Rev. Stanley L. Jaki, Stuart Road, Professor of Physics, Seton Hall University, has been awarded the Lecomte du Noyé Medal and Prize for 1970 for his book "Brain, Mind and Computers" (Herder & Herder, 1969).

The award is in memory of Pierre Lecomte du Noyé (1883-1947), pioneer in biophysical research at Rockefeller Institute (New York) and at the Institut Pasteur (Paris).

The award is for an outstanding contribution to the philosophical, cultural and ethical interpretation of the results and theories of modern physics and biology.

The award is presented each year, alternately in New York (Rockefeller Institute) and in Paris (Institut Pasteur). Father Jaki will receive the award at Rockefeller University on Tuesday.

Father Jaki has doctorates in theology and in physics. He earned his doctorate in physics with research on cosmic rays under the mentorship of Dr. Victor F. Hess, the Nobel laureate discoverer of cosmic rays. He is also the author of the highly acclaimed "The Revelation of Physics" (1966), to be issued in a second edition this winter by The University of Chicago Press. His most recent book is "The Paradox of Olbers' Paradox." It deals with the paradoxical relationship of many generations of scientists, astronomers and cosmologists to recognize the finiteness of the universe as the explanation of the darkness of the night sky.

Dr. Simon Marston, 36 Marion Road, professor of sociology at Rutgers College, recently presented a paper at the Seventh World Conference of Sociology in Varna, Bulgaria.

Dr. Marston attended the conference on a travel grant award from the American Sociological Association. His paper was entitled "Research Environments."

The editor of a recent volume, "Automation, Attention, and Anomie," Dr. Marston has also published more than 60 other books, monographs, reports and papers. He is a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the American Anthropological Association, The Society for Applied Anthropology and the Industrial Relations Research Association. He is also special assistant to the dean of the Graduate School of Rutgers University.

Douglas A. Walmisley, Cherry Brook Drive, has been made a vice president in the New York office of Boaz, Allen and Hamilton, Chicago based management consultants. Mr. Walmisley, who joined the firm four years ago, holds a bachelor's degree from RPI and a master's degree from the Harvard School of Business. He has previously been associated with Ford, RCA and the Raytheon Co.

NO FUEL OIL SHORTAGE
For Residential Use Residents of Mercer County who heat their homes with oil have assured today that ample supplies of home heating oil will be available to provide them with adequate heat this winter.

Erwin Gladstone, President of Mercer Regional Fuel As sociates, declared that recent publicity concerning oil shortages related to residual and not home heating oil.

"There is no shortage of home heating oil," he said. "There is a shortage of heavy residual oil. It is important that the homeowners recognize this difference."

The National Petroleum Council has now reported to the United States Department of Interior that no serious imbalance in the home heating oil supply is indicated and that no extraordinary measures are needed to meet demands under normal weather conditions," Gladstone said.

"The home heating industry has faced possible shortages in the past, but never has left its customers unprotected. We fully expect that this tradition will be preserved throughout the months ahead in New Jersey," Gladstone declared.

Your savings are spending...

Spending time not earning interest for you. That's costing you money. And that's not good. If your savings account doesn't pay interest from the day you make a deposit to the day you make a withdrawal, you have a dollar gap. At Princeton's First, we fill that gap. Fill it with interest on your savings. Interest that starts building the day you bring your deposit in. And doesn't stop until the day you take the money out. That's fair. So remember—

Princeton's First pays interest from day-of-deposit to day-of-withdrawal.

We pay interest on all types of savings plans. Regular accounts pay 4½% from day-of-deposit to day-of-withdrawal—as long as you have a minimum of $25. in your account at the end of the quarter. And it's compounded quarterly too. You can also choose from the Investment Passbook at 5%; the three-month certificate at 5%; the one-year certificate at 5½%; and the two-year certificate at 5¾%. At First National, there are lots of ways to keep your savings earning instead of spending. What could be fairer?

HOUSING DEMAND UP

In State, the demand for low-rent public housing for the elderly in New Jersey is twice as great as the current supply, according to a recent study released here today by the New Jersey Department of Community Affairs.

The study, conducted through June 30 by the Department's Division on Aging, revealed that 13,250 available low-rent public housing units for older people throughout the State were either occupied or under construction and promised for occupancy. It also found that about 13,000 eligible elderly applicants have been placed on waiting lists for future vacancies in these units.

According to the study, an additional 4,100 senior citizens units are currently in pre-construction or planning stages. It noted, however, that although applications for these units have not yet been solicited and will not be accepted until construction begins, these units are also expected to have twice the number of eligible applicants.

The survey covered the State's 61 local housing authorities and the only county authority, in Bergen County. It revealed that all had waiting lists except six, which reported units in pre-construction phases. These six, which do not expect to receive applications until early next year, are the Bergen County housing authority and the municipal authorities of Clementon (Camden County), Freehold (Monmouth County), Penns Grove (Salem County), Pleasantville (Atlantic County) and Newton (Sussex County).

The study contained figures for developments in 18 of the State's 21 counties, since Burlington and Hunterdon Counties have no public housing for the elderly and Sussex County is in the pre-construction planning phase.

"This figure of 13,000 older people on waiting lists indicates the tremendous need for low-rent housing for New Jersey's elderly," said Edward L. Donohue, director of the Division on Aging. "And this figure represents an absolute minimum need, since our findings were limited only to municipalities with housing authorities and could not, therefore, include needs in other communities throughout New Jersey."

In addition, Donohue noted, local authorities do little soliciting or advertising of such housing because of the limited supply.

According to the survey, public housing for the elderly in Hudson County had the longest waiting list — a total of 5,250 eligible persons awaiting vacancies among 2,490 occupied or promised units. Essex County was second with a waiting list of 1,666 for 3,594 units, and Union County was third, with 1,206 on waiting list for 816 units.

Donohue said low-rent public housing offers rents as low as $35 a month, depending on annual income. He said monthly rents for non-public senior citizen units range from $100 to $200.

Success of Tigers' 1970 Season Hinges on Victory over Cornell

ONE OF A HALF-DOZEN COMPLETIONS: Rod Plummer, Princeton quarterback, connected with fullback Doug Blake (table jersey at left) on this pass, one of 13 on which he made good Saturday. Tigers lost to Yale, 27-22, but Plummer's passing yardage of 213 went into the record book as top game performance by a Princeton player in Ivy action.

Ivy League Football

	W.	L.	Pct.
Dartmouth	5	0	1.000
Yale	5	0	.833
Harvard	4	2	.667
Princeton	3	3	.500
Cornell	3	3	.500
Penn	2	4	.333
Columbia	1	5	.167
Brown	1	5	.000

In a season pock marked by disappointment, Princeton's football team is fortunate in one sense as it faces the final game on its 1970 schedule: man for man, it has the edge in personnel over Cornell and can accordingly shape its own destiny in the league and overall records.

If the Tigers can finally play an error-free game, they will finish in first division among what is in all likelihood the strongest field ever to represent the Ivy League, and will match last year's satisfactory 6-3 mark. If, however, they continue the pattern of fumbles, interceptions and penalties that has corroded their play this fall, they will tumble from first to fifth place and barely top the .500 mark with a 5-4 record for the year.

QUICK LOOK AT CORNELL

OFFENSE: With quarterback Rick Furbush averaging nearly 400 yds. on completion, Cornell is not nearly as much of a one-man game as Ed Marinaro has had to make it last year. Attack averages about 340 yards per game.

DEFENSE: Not of the best. Six Ivy opponents have scored from 20 to 38 points against this generally over-matched platoon.

CHIEF ASSET: Marinaro, one of nation's best running backs, who averages better than 150 yards a game and over five yards per carry.

CHIEF PROBLEM: With defense in reeling from trouble, statistics show Cornell must score minimum of four touchdowns to have a shot at winning.

TYPE OF ATTACK: Combination T and W with flanker and split end.

Given a dry day and injury-free squads, Cornell and Princeton are ready to put on an intriguing offensive display. Not since the memorable days of the early '50s, when these two teams collided in Palmer Stadium with undefeated records before SRO crowds, have they faced each other with the firepower that Hank Bjorklund and Ed Marinaro have been their supporting casts represent.

Both teams have had season long defensive problems, as their respective performances against their superiors — Dartmouth, Harvard and Yale — reveal all too clearly. Each of these teams scored at least four times against the Ithacans and the Tigers, who yielded respective totals to them of 99 and 95 points. It appears wholly unlikely that they can stop each other in Palmer Stadium on Saturday.

What's Up at Quarterback?

To win, Princeton must exceed the one-two punch that Cornell has developed this year with fullback Ed Marinaro, who virtually owns the Ithacans' record book after just two seasons, and quarterback Rick Furbush, vastly improved over his 1969 form. The answer will depend on Hank Bjorklund's return to action (probable) after a severe thigh bruise kept him out of the Yale game, and ability on the part of quarterback Rod Plummer to gain the kind of yardage he did in the third half against the Elis. Therein lies the question that will not be answered until Saturday's game unfolds.

For all the problems he has had this fall, Plummer is now in the Ivy record book for the highest yardage amassed in the air by a Princeton player in one game since the league went formal 15 seasons ago. In the Bowl Saturday, he completed 13 for 25 for 243 yards, surpassing the mark of 226 set in 1956 by Jim Motley against Harvard.

In the face of that, of course, Plummer added to his season's interception total with three more, two of which were followed almost immediately by Yale touchdowns. With 1970 being labeled a building year for the beleaguered Princetonnians, and next fall providing them with more experienced holdover personnel than they have had in a number of years, Plummer's performance will be watched with unusual interest.

Cornell Lacks Balance. Matched exactly by Princeton at 3-3 in the league and 5-3 overall, Cornell has achieved virtually all of its success this season on the strength of Marinaro's running and the added pressure of the passing threat that Furbush has provided after showing little last fall. From Albright, a transfer from Wisconsin, is the other running back, rounding out the backfield with 200-40, fullback Dick Skarto.

A 230-lb. end, George Milosevic, and a big line averaging a hefty 213 pounds, operate up front. Like half the

TOO MANY ERRORS AGAIN

But Tigers Made It Close. In the end, it was surprising that Princeton's football team, playing without one of its top running backs in its history, even had a chance to defeat Yale as the clock was running out. Having lost Hank Bjorklund, the Tigers gave up two fumbles and four interceptions and still had a last-ditch chance to evade what proved to be a 27-to-22 defeat.

Yale, too, was hard hit by injuries. The Elis' starting quarterback and five other regulars did not see action. But the Blue did not fumble its reserve quarterback, Chuck Sizemore, did not throw an interception and the team did not incur a single costly penalty. The Tigers had three, one of which cost them possession after they had forced a Yale punt.

Of the six mistakes the Tigers made, four led directly to Yale touchdowns: • Shamore quarterback Tim Testerman, a surprise starter, fumbled midway through the first quarter when

Marinaro and Bjorklund Need Passing to Keep Defenses Honest

Each of the principals in Saturday's duel between tailbacks Ed Marinaro and Hank Bjorklund will need assistance from passing by his quarterback if the defenses are to be kept honest. While the spotlight will largely be on Marinaro, wearing number 44 for Cornell and Bjorklund, wearing number 40 for Princeton, neither player will be able to maneuver freely if his team's aerial game is found wanting.

Rick Furush, Cornell senior, has had a fine fall after being switched to quarterback in his junior year following a sophomore season at split end. In eight games this year, he has a remarkable 56½ average, and has compiled some 1,300 yards in total offense.

Marinaro, who has run for 1,222 yards this fall and scored 86 points, is the best combination of running strength and balance the Ivy League has ever known. As a sophomore, he set four Ivy and eight Cornell records and led the nation in yards averaged rushing per game. He can be held in check (Dartmouth's national all-time leader last week kept his total to 60 yards) but a Princeton platoon that has had season-long troubles isn't about to do so.

Bjorklund, who sat out the Yale game when he had the common sense to tell Jake McCollough what his doctor could not tell that he was able to play without running the risk of serious injury lost the Ivy League rushing lead to Marinaro because of his absence. He has 738 in five games to 811 for Marinaro in six, and it would be a fairly big achievement if he tops the Cornell player in the final statistics despite having played one less game.

Presuming that Bjorklund can run in top shape Saturday, he may well raise his bid with the subpar Cornell defense. Unlike Marinaro, he can throw, but neither one of Doug Blake, both former single-wing tailbacks—have had much success in the air this season.

Conceivably, the key to the outcome of Saturday's duel, more than any of the other players, is Rod Plummer.

Uneven in his performance much of the season, he nonetheless has the statistics going for him: a completion average of nearly 30%, 863 yards and nine TD passes. Since he also runs well, his total offense is now 1,654 in eight games. In the second half against Yale, he finally gave the type of performance essential to good T football, and the question now is whether he can do it again.

The principals on Saturday, however, will be Marinaro and Bjorklund. The game is the only one in the country in which two half backs who have been ranked among the top five half carriers nationally, will face each other.

For 60 yards, the other finding him completing a short pitch to McCollough from six yards out to cap a 40-yard drive.

With 2:44 remaining, John Bartiges tried a dribble kick but Yale (which had lost an undefeated season in 1968 when it failed to recover on such a play at Harvard) fell on the ball at midfield. The Elis managed to run out most of the time left, Princeton going 44 yards in two pass plays just before the game ended.

To the Tigers' great credit, the possibility of a rout after the score had mounted to 21-0 against them never materialized. The combination of Plummer's fine second half performance and their ability to make the final score close with Bjorklund on the bench may have given them enough of a lift to make their final effort Saturday their best of the year.

PHS Hopes to End Season with Only One Loss

LARRY PARKER CARRYING: PHS fullback Lawrence Parker gains 12 yards in the first period (right) against Notre Dame and runs for more yardage in the same period (picture at left). In all, the 6-0, 185-pound senior gained 126 yards in 23 carries. He also scored two touchdowns — his seventh and eighth — to lead the Little Tigers in that department. Princeton University is reportedly interested in him.

Before the start of the present season, PHS football coach Dick Wood was reviewing the schedule which included new comer Cherry Hill East as the final opponent. At the time, Wood described Cherry Hill as "the best team in South Jersey last year." He can't say that this year. Last week, Cherry Hill East was blasted 43-0 by Pennsauken. It was their third defeat against five wins; PHS has also won five but has tied two for a 5-1 record.

So Cherry Hill is not the "big" team Wood felt it might be back in August; they can be had. But he isn't going overboard either. "I think we have a good chance," he said, "but still want to be cautious. They looked good the week before against Collingswood and they still have those five wins."

Perhaps the outcome will depend on which team scores first. Against Collingswood, Cherry Hill never trailed. But against Pennsauken, Wood reported, Cherry Hill was unable to regroup after Pennsauken scored the first time it had the ball and scored again for a quick two touchdown lead.

PHS has proved it has the ability to get on the board. Including last week's 41-8 victory over Notre Dame, the Little Tigers have run up 81 points while limiting the opposition to 16.

The game will be played at Cherry Hill East with a 2 p.m. kick off. Should the Little Tiger's southern invasion end in success, it will mark the first time a Wood-coached team has lost one game in a season.

Notre Dame Routed. After a scoreless first period in which PHS drove down to the Irish one only to be stopped twice, PHS scored twice in the second period and three more times in the third to demolish the visitors. It was the Little Tigers' best overall performance of the season and the 41-8 score was the most lopsided ever between the two.

"We made some mistakes," said Wood after the game, but he added, smiling, "we did a lot of things right, too."

The game produced a lot of standouts. In the front ranks were Lou John Rossi, who passed for two touchdowns, and Lawrence Parker, who ran for two more and Daryl Boone, who has the best hands of any PHS player in years. "Boone had a spectacular day; he was in the right place all the time," said Wood.

Just a step behind were John Hodges, who scored Princeton's first two touchdowns, the offensive play of Dave O'Brien and John Drummond and the ball hawking of Mark Cuomo.

A defensive halfback, Cuomo is only 145, 5-8, but there has been a single game in which he hasn't recovered a fumble or intercepted a pass. His interception of a wobbly Notre Dame pass on the ND 26 set up Princeton's first score. In six plays, with Rossi hitting one side of the Irish line and then the other, PHS drove to the one. Hodges carried it in. Steve Fry kicked the first of five extra points. One of his tries was blocked.

Notre Dame Flat. The Irish meantime couldn't establish a running game and, unfortunately for them, quarterback Joe Fallon was even less effective as a passer. Rossi picked off another one of his crumbles on the PHS 49.

Okay, now. Let's take it to them right away!" shouted line coach Jim Beachall from the sideline. Rossi responded by tossing a long pass to Boone who was tackled on the ND three. Hodges ran into the line and leaped over the goal for the second time in less than two minutes.

The home team, playing on a homecoming day in which the new PHS press box was dedicated to the six PHS alumni here who gave their life in service to their country, broke the game open in the third period.

Lawrence Parker's 22-yard run to the eight was the big gainer in a 40 yard march. Parker carrying it over from the one. Then after Bart Harris recovered a ND fumble on the Irish 41, Rossi got all 41 yards in one gulp by throwing a strike to his wingback Steve Sanford slanting over the middle.

Boone kept PHS rolling when he then intercepted a ND pass off a fake punt and returned it to the visitors' 34. A perfectly executed screen from Rossi to Parker was good for 20 yards.

Rossi, mixing his plays well, drove his team to the six. Following a penalty, PHS forced from 10 yards out on a jump pass from Rossi to Boone. It was Rossi's eighth scoring pass.

After the Irish scored its only TD on a 20 yard pass from new quarterback Gerald Gofka to halfback John McGredy, PHS retaliated with its sixth score with 7:04 to go in the contest. Parker, starting from the 27, was hit at the line but kept his balance and went down the sideline and in.

ND learned, as have others in previous weeks, that once Parker is clear, he's gone. Parker is deceptive. He carries most of his 186 pounds in his torso; his legs are almost spindly. But this dash man on the track team can fly. Both Parker and Rossi are reportedly being eyed by Princeton University, which would like to have a home town boy on its squad.

BOYS' HOCKEY TO START FOR PEE-WEES, RAJAMANS. The ten teams of the Lawrence Township Ice Hockey League will begin their sixth season Sunday. The Black Hawks will defend their Pee Wee division title, while Navy will attempt to repeat as champions of the Rajaman division. Play was originally scheduled to start last week, but was postponed until this Sunday because of the warm, wet weather.

Lavino Rink of the Lawrence Township School has been made available as in previous years. Coaches include Charles Weeden, Sam Howell, John Horgan, Neil Waldo, and Ed Wislar. There are a limited number of openings in the 8 year-old bracket. Information may be obtained from Harlan Whitehead, 896-0922.

Hun School Defeats PDS, 29 to 6—Unbeaten String Now at 33

The longest winning football streak still alive in New Jersey is owned by the Hun School.

Scoring once in every period, Hun defeated Princeton Day School Saturday, 29-6, for its eighth in a row and 33rd consecutive game without a defeat over the past four years. There have been three ties.

How good was the 1970 squad, which outscored its opponents 269 to 33? "It's hard to compare teams," said Hun coach Dave Leece, "but I think it could be classified as the best in Hun's history." That history goes back to 1911 and certainly this year's team is one of the best in that span.

"We were much more explosive this year than last," Leece added. "We were able to do a lot of different things, use different formations, mix it up. We completely outplayed everybody we met."

The offensive star for Hun this year was Princeton's Jack Petrone. Petrone scored twice against PDS on runs of 16 and 5 yards to end the season with 20 touchdowns and four extra points. He rushed for 130 yards, against the Panthers.

In 123 carries this season, he ran for 1,178 yards, almost 10 yards a carry. Followers of Jackie point out if one were to include the yards he gained on passes, punt returns and pass interceptions, his total would approach 3,600 yards.

All good things must come to an end, however, and Leece is going to lose not only Petrone but the heart of his offensive and defensive lines, which contributed so heavily to Hun's success. He loses 22 in June, 11 lettermen will return.

Of these, only six played regularly. They are quarterback Alan Chalifoux, halfback Pete Jones, Dennis Skrajewski, guard and defensive end George Harper, tackle Greg Rafalski, defensive halfback and Chuck Stisa, fullback and defensive end.

Ziegler Scores First. After a series of turnovers, the product of PDS's soggy field—Hun finally got moving Saturday, marching 61 yards in nine plays. The TD came on a Chalifoux pass to end Rick Ziegler who made a fine one-handed grab in the end zone.

In the second period, Petrone capped a 90-yard march through the PDS line for the final 16 yards. Hun then crossed up the Panthers when fullback Mike Gaudino passed to Chalifoux for two point conversion to make it 15-0 at the half.

Chalifoux's 26 yard strike to Mark Taylor in the third quarter upped the margin to 23-0. Behind better protection than the Panthers' Pete McCandless received, Chalifoux completed 16 of the 12 passes he attempted. Petrone's run in the final period capped a 50 yard drive. PDS, held to 40 yards rushing, tried to score in the air. McCandless threw often and well under the circumstances. But the hard charging Hun line forced him to scramble most of the time and McCandless, under pressure, hung the ball up often enough for Hun

ZIEGLER BREAKS INTO THE OPEN: Hun Captain Ron Ziegler gave the Princeton Day secondary trouble all afternoon catching several passes, too far touchdowns in the Red and Black's 2-6 triumph over Princeton Day, its 33rd straight victory. Here Ziegler chokes a tackle by PDS co-captain Dave Clachorn for a good gain.

to pick off three. McCandless got the home team's only TD with just seconds to play when he converted a bad snap from center into a 43 yard run.

A Soggy Mess. The villain in the well-attended game was the PDS field. Isolated, surrounded by trees, its setting is beautiful; the level and drainage impossible. The field has a noticeable slope its entire length, prompting one wag to remark Saturday that the team going up hill should only have to go eight yards for a first down.

No attempt has been made to provide any drainage and as a result of the week's rain, the field was a waterlogged sponge. "A quagmire," Leece called it. Players on the side lines had to stand on plywood sheets to keep from sinking into the muck.

Asked how he felt after the completion of such a season, Leece replied, "I feel great." He won't have much time to enjoy it, though. This week he starts all over again as head coach of the Hun basketball squad.

NOTHING TO CRY ABOUT

For PDS Football Team. No body likes to lose football games, especially with the league title at stake, but for the Princeton Day football team, there's no reason to feel sorry about last Saturday's contest against the Hun School.

The small Panther squad battled valiantly against the mammoth Red and Black machine, but it was like sending a boy up against a man.

The PDS playing field drains as well as a sponge and its totally saturated condition hampered both teams. That plus the size of Hun's defensive line, cut off the Panthers' running game right from the start. Dan Barron was well aware of this and had McCandless throwing, often from the shotgun formation.

He managed to complete 11 of 25 tosses, for 148 yards, but Hun picked off three of his long aeriels. McCandless' 43 yard touchdown run with 16 seconds remaining averted a shutout for the Blue and White and gained a measure of satisfaction.

The Hun offensive was stopped the first three times it had the ball, but if there was any flickering of hope in the hearts of PDS fans, it was vastly premature. It was only a matter of time before the victors' powerful attack got rolling, and then Jack Petrone began to find the holes, and quarter back Alan Chalifoux began to hit Rick Ziegler, and his other receivers.

The Panthers were guilty of mistakes here and there but nothing could have changed the outcome, and against a team, like Hun, errors are going to crop up. The team played well to a man, but Hun, to a man, was far and away superior.

The memories that PDS players should keep from this remark Saturday that the team going up hill should only have to go eight yards for a first down.

MORE RECOGNITION FOR PRINCETON TENNIS PROGRAM:
The teaching of tennis to thousands of youngsters in the Princeton area has not escaped the United States Lawn Tennis Association. To assist Princeton tennis leaders in continuing their efforts, Harrison Rowbotham (right), chairman of the junior development committee of USLTA, presents a $500 check on behalf of national junior tennis development to Mrs. Simon Hulner, president of the Youth Tennis Foundation of Princeton and chairman of the Princeton Recreation Board. Sports In Princeton the championship of the Penn. Jersey League.

With its 0-8 season last year, few people would have predicted the Panthers could go as far as they did. After a disappointing opening loss to Montclair, the Blue and White came alive and played an exciting brand of football, staging come-from-behind rallies every week.

These last-minute heroics must have given some sort of mystic to the team. Joe Harris' football forecasts picked PDS to upset Hun by a point, 7-6. And for a week, at least The Evening Times had Princeton Day ranked ahead of Lawrenceville School in its Prep School Division. While these are both pipe dreams, it's to the credit of a fine Panther squad that anyone would have considered such a thing.

USLTA DONATES $500

For Tennis Program Here
Harrison Rowbotham of Boston, Chairman of the Junior Development Committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, last week recognized the contribution the Princeton Youth Tennis Foundation has made toward grass roots tennis development throughout the country.

To assist Princeton tennis leaders in continuing their efforts on behalf of national junior tennis development, Rowbotham presented the Foundation with a check for $500 from the USLTA.

Princeton's program has become a model for other communities, and its teaching methods and organizational structural guidelines for junior tennis development. Mrs. Lewis Kraft and John Conroy, co-directors of the program, have been active in bringing the Princeton story to others as members of several USLTA committees.

Part of the funds will be spent on the preparation of a new publication for USLTA in cooperation with the National Recreation and Parks Association.

tion. It will serve as a "how to" manual for parks and recreation directors throughout the country with special attention given to reaching the disadvantaged.

Mrs. Simon Hulner, President of the Youth Tennis Foundation, has called a meeting of the trustees and the advisory committee for December 9 at 8 p.m., at the home of Mrs. John McCarthy, secretary of the foundation.

HILTON TOPS CLEAVER

For Junior Football Crown
In a battle for the championship of the junior division of the Princeton Midget Football League, Hilton Really scored twice in the second half to defeat previously unbeaten J. P. Cleaver, 12-0. In a second game, First National Bank blanked Sibson Associates, 6-0. The final standings: Hilton, 3-0; First National, 1-0; Cleaver, 2-1; Peterson Construction, 0-2; and Sibson, 0-3-1.

Week-long rains made Hilton going slippery and both Hilton and Cleaver failed to gain a single first down in the first half. But in the third period, Kevin Streater, the league's leading rusher, broke around right end and scored from 15 yards out. Midway in the final period, Streater again scored on a sweep, this one for 45 yards. In all, Streater rushed for 103 yards in nine carries.

Andy Priest and Robert Willis recovered fumbles for Hilton. Other defensive standouts were Gary Coluccio, Mike Budd, Skip Guerin, John Rosenthal, Eddie Gibson, Chris Wells, Jim O'Grady, Jack Gaylord, Louis Davis, Jimmy Helferman and Todd Miller.

Stanton Brooks with 46 yards in 16 attempts was the leading ground gainer for Cleaver. He was aided by Bill Schmieskamp, Mark Sonnenfeld, Jon Arrington and Mike Bolster.

Robert Burner, Jeff Raser, Andy Jensen, Rick Miller, Dean Boyer, Brooks Sonnenfeld and Arrington were strong on defense for the losers.

Howie Brooks (85 yards in 22 carries) scored the only TD in the Sibson First National contest in the fourth period, getting the six pointer on a five yard run. Tommy Ferguson and Rod Brady also ran well for the winning Bank eleven. On defense for the victors were Andy Wood, Jack Budd, Robert Campbell, Mike Curtis, Robert McAvonia, Fain Hackney and Dwight Nallack.

The leading runners for Sibson were Pat Hool, Larry Gamblin and Chuck Gillette. Named for their defensive play were Keith Wood, Win Brown, Philip Billington, David Miller, Mark Danforth, Matthew Adance, Chris Miller, James Lyon and Don Johnson.

Tiger Quiet on TV

The Princeton Rutgers basketball game will be televised from New Brunswick on the afternoon of Saturday, January 30. It is part of the 1971 schedule of 11 contests to be shown through arrangements made with the Eastern College Athletic Conference.

Also of interest to basketball fans in this area will be the meeting on January 5 between Penn, defending Ivy League champion, and Dartmouth. That will be seen from Hanover, N. H., starting at 12 noon.

MALL'S SUFFERS LOSS
Ineligible Player Used. The use of an ineligible player for one play in its game November 8 with Joe & Lena's has cost Mall Tavern a victory and first place with the Ewing Giants in the Mercer County flag football league.

Mall's won the game easily 26-0, but it was later forfeited to Joe & Lena's who had filed the protest. Mall's use of the player was apparently due to a mix up when one player was temporarily injured.

All games were rained out last Sunday, and only those two having any effect on the playoffs have been rescheduled for Sunday. This included Mall's against Monarchs and Ewing Giants against Dale's. The showdown game between Harrison Athletic Club and Ivy Inn is expected to be played, but a date has not been set.

SAILING SEASON ENDS

For Carriage Club. The Carriage Sailing Club ended its fall program Sunday with four races on the lake.

Although an intermittent drizzle cut into attendance, the wind held strong enough to make the contention spirited. Jim and Pat Nicholson were first in the Sloop Class, with 18.8 points, while Tom Hiltner came in second, with 12.9. Bob Hultman took first place in the Sunfish Class (24.2 points), while Walt Gibson (20.0 points) and Jack Kume (16.1 points) took second and third places respectively.

Awards for the full year's sailing will be presented to the winners of Sloop, Penguin and Sunfish classes at the club's annual meeting on November 8, at the home of Commodore Ed Metcalf Racing on Lake Carnegie will resume during the end of March, when the winter weather moderates.

BOWLING NOTES

Shely Bowl 600. Jim Shely of Princeton Aviation sandwiched a 167 between 209-224 last week for an even 600 series in the Nassau League. Vince Tufano had 203. Fred Goetz 199.

Grover Lumber has the lead with 41 points, followed by Hill Climbers (39) and Hinkson's (38). First Aid has 34.

Bill Whaley's 216 was the only 200 game in the Tri-Country Firemen's League. He rolls for No. 1.

Ray Slovinsky rolled 189, while Doug Watson Jr. and George Luck had 187s.

In the standings, Rocky Hill has a 46-35 lead over Kingsmen No. 3 and Princeton Junction each have 34.

Four points separate the top six teams in the A League. On top, with 36 points is Rialto Barber Shop.

Antlers, whose Bud Fowler rolled a 250 frame a week ago, is tied with Shanty Electric and Stefanchik. All have 34 points. Even at 32 all are Ivy Inn and Sherwin Williams.

Sports Equipment Sale Set

A sailboat and a set of Little League uniforms are among the items to be available at the annual sports equipment sale at the YWCA Saturday from 10 to 3. Sponsored by the health, physical education, and recreation committee as a fund raising event for the new YWCA sauna, the event will offer a wide range of sports equipment and accessories.

Donations of outgrown or unused sports and camping equipment and accessories may be left at the YWCA. Arrangements for transportation of large items can be made with Miss Joan Hill in the YW office. Miss Susan Mapes is chairman of the committee.

IDA FENCE APPROVED
Bellevue Rehearsing Drama. The Borough Zoning Board Tuesday granted a variance for a section of eight foot cyclone fence surrounding the Institute for Defense Analyses on Prospect Street and referred to hear the application of the Institute, Inc. to erect a mail type veranda canopy in the front of Bellows apparel store, 210 Nassau Street.

Two other hearings involving Nature's Best, a health food store at 242 Nassau Street and property at 41 1/2 Chestnut Street, were deferred at the request of the applicants.

Dr. Harold Lohrler, director of IDA, told the board, that such a fence is never considered until August 24 when radicals blew up a math building at the University of Wisconsin.

We have the same type of facility," he said. After conferring with security experts, including Boro police, the fence was installed soon afterwards. But because it exceeded six feet (10 feet, including two feet of barbed wire) it was considered a structure by Borough ordinance and had to be set back 25 feet from any property line.

About 200 feet of the fence, hidden by hemlock trees, came within ten feet of the rear line of properties along Murray Place. To place the fence 25 feet away in this area meant it would cut through an existing parking lot and driveway. A. C. Reeves Hicks, attorney for IDA, told the board. Application for a variance was filed with the zoning officer on September 24. Mr. Hicks pointed out, but it was not heard in October because the zoning agenda was filled.

Nineteen Object. Mack Lawrence of 184 Little Hall, Princeton University, and a member of Cap & Gown on Prospect, told the board he objected to the fence on aesthetic grounds. "It's one of the ugliest fences I've seen; it doesn't blend in at all," he said, adding that it looked like "something from Linden, N. J."

He presented the board with a list of signatures from 19 neighbors in the area who also opposed the fence.

The board granted the variance because of the "extraordinary and exceptional conditions, lack of other reasonable places to locate the fence and the absence of harm to surrounding properties." It stipulated the fence be removed when it is no longer needed or in any event not longer than 1975 when IDA's current lease expires and it will move off campus.

No New Material Facts. The board, after huddling in executive session, declined to hear the application of Bellows, saying it was essentially the same application that had been denied in April.

The arguments now presented by the board run unannounced, could have been presented at that time. "The appeal is based on the denial November 8 of a building permit by the building inspector but there is no such record of that denial," he said. If there had been, the board said that the inspector would only have been restating a finding of the board's earlier decision.

Earlier, Mr. Hicks, also attorney for Bellevue, had told the board, "My theory is different this time." But the board insisted on hearing many different facts that weren't available in April.

Central to the case is the right of way of Nassau Street defined by the Borough as 50 feet from the center line and which presently lies nine feet inside of Bellows.

Mr. Hicks produced a letter from the State Department of Transportation which he said gave his client permission to build a canopy in the right of way as long as he agreed to take it down whenever the department felt it was in the public interest.

"I have every right in the world to build to my property line which is eight feet in front of my building," he said. "I'm not talking about breaking any ordinance."

"If the local government is going to take away front yard by definition only it is unfair, arbitrary and capricious," Nassau Street, he said, was never given any width on the Borough map.

Mr. Hicks implied that he would appeal the board's finding. "It's hard to figure where

LaVake Celebrates Four-Fold Expansion, Adds New Departments

Like a many faceted diamond, LaVake Jewelers, 54 Nassau Street, has added some facets of its own and now shines more brilliantly than ever.

Samuel Kind, president of the store since his father's retirement in 1948, last week celebrated a four fold expansion (from 850 to 3500 square feet) and major remodeling. The official grand opening was attended by Mayor Robert Cawley and Township Mayor John Wallace.

"What we have now is a complete jewelry and gift store," Mr. Kind said. "We can accommodate practically any desire for a gift or service."

As soon as one steps inside a spaciousness and quiet elegance is apparent. The Wedgwood blue linen textured vinyl walls are accented by rich

PEOPLE AND DIAMONDS — SUCCESS STORY: Sam Kind, owner of LaVake, has two loves: people and diamonds. He knows diamonds but he understands — and obviously likes — dealing with people. That's the main reason why he and his wife, Alice, are celebrating this week a four-fold expansion in their store on Nassau Street. "People really appreciate what you do for them," he said. cherry paneling. Diamonds and crystal catch and reflect the gleam of countless recessed spotlights.

Bridal Room Created. The original store is devoted now entirely to a bridal room in which china, crystal, hollow ware and stemware is displayed in profusion. It's all there: Lenox, Royal Doulton, Minco, Haviland, Val St. Lambert... sterling silver from Tiffany, Kirk, Gorham, Reed & Barton, Lunt, Towle. International Silver all mounted in settings on the wall so the bride can compare and select. The china is mounted on the wall as well, and table place settings combining china, silverware, and crystal are on display in unusually attractive fashion.

There is a bridal registry of course, a bridal and personal stationery, and a bridal consultant. For those who need a gift for the bride LaVake has added an exquisite collection of Daum crystal sculptured figures and striking designs in glass from Orfèvres, the famous Swedish glass firm. They range from a stunning sailboat almost two feet high to pieces easily held in the hand.

In the next portion, formerly occupied by Renwick's, LaVake has two private rooms where customers can examine gems in private. LaVake provides two gem microscopes, a proportion scope to determine the proper cutting of a diamond and a polaroscope to determine if a stone is a single or double refraction for identification.

Men's Boutique Added. LaVake has also added a men's boutique offering 12 a the r goods, deskware, wallets, stud boxes and so on. It has also brought in a more complete line of clocks, including Elliott and Concord decorative clocks and Chelsea clocks and barometers.

Like porcelain? LaVake probably has the largest selection of Cybus porcelain in New York or New Jersey, Mr. Kind said. Limited and unlimited editions.

Want an unique gift? One of LaVake's sterling silver clipper ships will have you reaching for your wallet. Or perhaps one of their chess sets, or sterling silver puffers.

Let anyone think LaVake with all its new gifts has abandoned its old mainstay, Mr. Kind was quick to point out that "Diamonds, watches, jewelry, repair and engraving are still our main function." Particularly diamonds. "We have," said Mr. Kind simply, "diamonds to fit anyone's pocketbook."

Since 1877, LaVake Jewelers has come a long way since its founding in 1877, the year after M. E. LaVake traveled from Massachusetts to attend the Philadelphia Exposition of 1876. On his way home, he stopped at Princeton and purchased a store from a clockmaker here and opened for business in 1877.

The original store stood where Princeton Bank & Trust now stands. It moved to its present location in Palmer Square around 1937, Mr. Kind said. It was operated by Mr. — Continued on Next Page LaVake's son and grandson until it was purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Leo Kind in June, 1966.

At the time, the store occupied 353 square feet. In 1966, LaVake acquired the space occupied by the Louise Maas candy shop. This added a scant 25 square feet, however.

Today, it has that additional 600 square feet, 20 employees and an ever increasing customer radius that extends beyond Mercer County. It has its own watch repairer and engraver.

But some things never change. Namely, Sam Kind's enjoyment in dealing with people.

"Princeton just has to be a marvelous place to do business in," he said. "I like serving people and I've found that people really do appreciate what you do for them."

TREND REVERSED

At Systemedics, A sales increase for the first nine months this year of 34% and a profit of one cent a share in contrast to a net loss in 1969 was reported this week by William P. Krause, president of Systemedics, Inc. Sales through September 30 were $1,173,975, compared to $875,322 during the corresponding period a year ago. Mr. Krause reported. For the nine months, a net profit of $10,590 was realized, contrasted to a net loss of $139,622. The per share figures are one cent, fully diluted, and 24 cents (loss), not diluted.

Systemedics anticipates continued sales growth at the same rate for the current quarter, with a further increase in operating profits. Mr. Krause said. He also told stockholders:

"The Company's basic medical billing services are now firmly established with well staffed regional processing centers in Princeton, San Francisco and Long Beach, California, and Miami, Florida. It is expected that this business will continue to grow at an annual rate of 25-30% for the foreseeable future as paperwork demands on the physician and clinic mount."

COEDUCATION POSTPONED
 At Lawrenceville. "The Lawrenceville School will continue for the present to be a school for boys." This was the principal item contained in a long resolution adopted by the 161-year-old school's Board of Trustees at their autumn meeting.

The School has been studying the feasibility of coeducation since 1968 when a committee of trustees, faculty and students first brought the question before the Board. Subsequently the Board asked its permanent Instruction and Discipline Committee under the ad hoc chairmanship of Sidney W. Davidson of the class of 1972 to study the matter from all points of view.

The Committee in turn commissioned John Reydel, Chairman of the History Department, to conduct an exhaustive study. His report, "A Study of the Desirability of Coeducation at The Lawrenceville School," concluded that the Board would be desirable from several points of view — pedagogical, social and psychological — but left open the question of feasibility.

The Instruction and Discipline Committee also asked for a staff study of various configurations of the School whether it should be a five or three year school, whether the balance of forms should be in line with proposals which called for a study conducted by four independent schools (Exeter, Lawrenceville, Andover and Choate) which have been published by the College Entrance Examination Board under the title "1980: The Liberal Education of an Age Group." Whether Lawrenceville should abandon immediately upon intermediate 13th and 14th years was also studied.

The Committee asked for a complete report on an experience at other schools which have examined the same question. Some of which have already adopted coeducation and some of which have decided not to. The evidence available at this time, the Board felt, definitive conclusions are impossible to draw.

An Open Mind. Other sections of the resolution stated: "The Trustees will make no decisions about the educational plan or the physical facilities of the School which would in years to come foreclose — in a serious manner — the possibility of coeducation.

"With an awareness of reasons which urge coeducation, the Trustees request the Headmaster after consultation with the finance committee and any others that he may wish to make a further study of the financial impact of residential or day student coeducation in terms not only of Annual Giving and of the "Program '75 Now," the major capital gifts program to which the School is now committed, but also in terms of our physical plant.

"Lawrenceville will mean

EXHIBIT TO OPEN

Featuring Ceramics Work. An exhibit of the works of major Eastern ceramists will be held at the galleries of the Fund for Peace Education, 161 Nassau Street. The show will open on Sunday, November 29, and continue through December 25. A public reception for the artists will be held from 10 to 7 p.m. on November 29.

The show will include a wide variety of stoneware and porcelain. Among the artists represented will be Toshio Tokueka, Princeton University; Norman Shulman, Rhode Island School of Design; Regis Brodie, Skidmore, Kit V. Snyder der, Swathmore, Ise John son, Trenton State College and Aronson who both work and exhibit in the Princeton area.

The Fund for Peace Education features a continuing exhibit of prints and paintings by well known artists such as Jacob Landau, Tom George, G. Prestupno, Judith K. Brodsky, Naomi Lamont, Stefan Martin and more. It provides office space for many area and national organizations working in the peace movement. It also provides a display of gifts for peace including jewelry, posters, books, Christmas cards and UNICEF items. The office and galleries are open from 9 to 5 Monday through Saturday. All art and cultural activities are available for a donation to the Fund for Peace Education.

AGENDA SET

By School Board. The following items will be on Tuesday's agenda of the Princeton Regional Board of Education.

• Clarification of the Board's turn down of the over night ski trip planned by Princeton High School students.

• Acceptance of the Long Range Planning Committee's report and a discussion of ways to discuss the report with faculty and community.

• The accounting of the 1969-70 budget. The line will be available at the meeting. The 1970-71 budget is expected to be completed by December 15, with a public hearing tentatively set for January 12, and formal adoption on January 15.

• Religious holidays in the public schools will be discussed and Board Member Henry Pownier will present a resolution proposing a study committee and an interim adoption of the December 15, 1969 guidelines for Christmas observance. The action is in response to a request from Rabbi Herschel Matt of the Princeton Jewish Center, Philip Circumham, Michael Rockland and Ruth Schuman.

• The public will be asked to communicate with the board concerning the schools programs for languages, sports, social studies, environmental education, as well as student rights and faculty rights.

The Middle School status report will be presented. The withdrawal schedule for West Windsor students is nearing the negotiation stage. Winfield Pike reported to the Board. The greatest disturbance at Princeton High School will be caused by 40 students who are withdrawn at once. The phase-out may be negotiated in terms of one class a year.

1930's Quality of Construction

1970's Conveniences

Centrally air-conditioned first floor, modern, light and sunny kitchen, fire and burglar alarm systems, electric garage door opener.

And a four bedroom, three and a half bath house built to last the way they used to build, with the kind of handicraft that takes years to mature! Large dining room, pleasant study, walk up attic with storage as well as living space.

Beautifully cared for, of course — and so nice to come home to. Asking $65,000

TURN YOUR BACK ON TIME and enter into an era of gracious living when you buy this charming country estate. Partly pre-Revolutionary, partly Victorian in age, the house has been modernized in all the essentials, while still retaining the charm and feeling of a bygone time. Many fireplaces, wide mellow floor boards, beamed ceilings, a gracious front staircase — and a large and lovely home of five bedrooms and four and a half baths.

Set on almost thirteen prime acres adjoining the exclusive Bedens Brook Club — with a branch of the brook running through the property. A plus is the three bedrooms, two bath apartment over the separate three car garage — great for guests and in-laws, servants, or as now, for ample rental income.

This is a slow place, a property to love and cherish for the rest of your life.

THE REAL THING! AN ORIGINAL, EARLY AMERICAN TRACT OF 30 ACRES THAT HAS BEEN IN THE SAME FAMILY SINCE 1804. The house is a weathered relic of Colonial days without running water, electric or indoor conveniences. Restoration of this authentic, early settlers home is still possible although a costly challenge. The land is one of the nicest pieces of ground in New Jersey. It is on a hill 10 miles northwest of Princeton. Many rods of dry stone walls still mark the pre-Revolutionary cleared fields. This is a tract no broker has offered on the market before. A unique opportunity to obtain 30 acres of the best land there is. $85,000 and worth every cent of it. JOHN D. GUINNESS, Real Estate Broker, 2 West Broad Street, Hopewell, N.J. 609-466-1224.
